Jap Plane Loss Strains Shipping

LONDON (CP)—The BBC, commenting on United Nations' air assaults on Japanese-occupied New Guinea, tonight quoted a Sydney correspondent as saying every Japanese plane downed in New Guinea increases the demand on Japanese shipping.

For every Japanese plane downed, he said, repair parts or reinforcements are needed and can only be brought to the island by ship.

"And these ships are coming in for terrific punishment," he added.

SAVE GAS, RUBBER

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian army has stepped into line with gasoline and tire conservation programs with instructions for elimination of "uneconomical and unnecessary operations of all military transport vehicles" and stringent speed regulations governing travel in army vehicles. Canadian Raiders May Strike Blow At Europe Coast

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND (CP)—Lt. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton hinted today that Canadian raiding parties may strike along the coast of Europe.

In a general interview at the new army headquarters with Canadian and British war correspondents, he was asked by a British reporter who covered the St. Nazaire raid if he anticipated Canadians would share such raiding activities.

Gen. McNaughton replied: "Yes. Patrol and raiding activities are part of the training troops require and it is normal business for an army to get its patrols well out."

OUTPUT GROWS

Answering other questions, he discussed formation of army headquarters and the development of war industries in Canada.

"I place more emphasis than ever before on industrial development to increase the supply of arms and munitions for the armed forces, so our men can go into the field with the advantage over the enemy," Gen. McNaughton said.

He paid tribute to the spirit of Canadian munitions workers and "the amazing skill and dexterity of women coming into industry."

Production is making great strides, the general said, adding that this morning he had received a cable from Canada that production of one important munitions article was 156 per cent in excess of schedule.

He cabled back his compliments to those working on this production.

11 False Alarms Called Sabotage

MONTREAL (CP)—An epidemic of false alarms which sent apparatus from 22 fire stations on 11 calls in 38 minutes was "an act of sabotage," Director Raymond Pare of the Montreal Fire Department said today.

The persons responsible for the calls are believed to have traveled in an automobile, turning in alarms from boxes along a five-mile route.

The first call came early today from the corner of Sherbrooke and St. Urbain Streets, and subsequent calls came from boxes located along a route which led to Cote des Neiges. Apparatus at No. 5 station was sent out nine times during the period.

"It is pure sabotage," Director Pare said. "It causes the wastage of gasoline and the wearing out of vital rubber."

U.S. to Cut Consumer Goods Production

WASHINGTON (AP) Production of most consumer durable goods will be stopped by May 31, Donald M. Nelson, United States war production head, disclosed today.

Declaring that "history will record whether we have moved too fast or too slow" in the drive to curtail civilian industries and convert them to war production, Nelson said the high point of the program would be reached in a few days with issuance of orders halting most private building construction and prohibiting use of iron and steel in hundreds of items.

CHANGES INDUSTRY

"Their impact here and abroad will be widespread and sweeping," the W.P.B. chief predicted, adding that the two orders were part of a pattern, carefully planned by the W.P.B., which changes "the face of American industry."

The goal of the program is a "sound but lean civilian economy," Nelson declared, adding that no one yet knows how "lean" it can be, but that it will "get leaner and leaner as the war program goes on."

"We're taking away from the people things which make the standard of living," Nelson said in his discussion of the changes at a press conference, but "this is the way of total all-out war and the price of early victory."

BRITISH LOSE DESTROYER HAVOCK

LONDON (CP)—The Admiralty today announced the British destroyer Havock had been wrecked off the coast of French Tunisia.

Only one sailor lost his life, the communiqué said, adding that the 1,340-ton vessel was a total loss. The rest of the normal crew of 145 was "believed safe." (The Italians claimed they had sunk the Havock.)

The eight-year-old warship participated in the destruction of six German merchant ships and the munitions ship Ravensfeldt at Narvik April 10, 1940. She was unscathed, though two destroyers of the force of five were lost.

Industrial Heating Plants Ordered to Burn Coal

OTTAWA (CP)—About 165 owners of commercial and industrial heating and steam plants in British Columbia have been ordered to switch from oil to coal, it was announced today on behalf of Munitions Minister Howe.

These are in addition to the 725 who received a similar order Mar. 19. A departmental statement estimated the new instruction from Oil Controller G. R. Cottrell will result in a saving of upwards of 35,000,000 gallons of oil a year. The instruction of Mar. 19 to schools, municipal buildings, hospitals, churches, office buildings, theatres, institutions, apartment houses, restaurants and other buildings is believed to have meant a saving of about 14,000,000 gallons. The two instructions will thus provide some 49,000,000 gallons for the navy, for railway locomotives operating through the Rockies, and for essential war industries on the west coast.

Householders have not been affected as yet.

The statement said equipment now is being installed in Regina and Moose Jaw for a switch-over to coal in the power plants operated in those cities.

"The need for oil is so great that coal must be substituted," said Mr. Howe. "Regina and Moose Jaw have appreciated our problem and are co-operating splendidly. In Regina the new coal equipment will be in operation before the end of this month. Moose Jaw foresaw what was coming and bought much of the equipment some time ago. The switch-over in that city will be completed sooner than in Regina."

It is estimated the power plant switch in the two Saskatchewan cities will provide about 6,600,000 gallons of oil for the navy. In place of the oil "bug dust" Alberta coal will be burned.

Hindus Spurn Defence Offer Britain Makes Bid To Moslem Party

NEW DELHI (AP)—The working committee of the All-India Congress was reported tonight to have decided to adhere to its stand against the British independence plan in spite of a British offer to appoint an Indian as defence minister. Announcement of the offer had been made by Mohammed Ali Jinnah, president of the Moslem League.

Jinnah stated this concession was made by the British war cabinet in its reply to Indian criticism of the original British proposal for India's post-war independence.

Nevertheless, despite this offer and renewed efforts by a United States envoy, the leader of the Hindu All-India Congress Party expressed forthright objections to other phases of the program, and signs grew that the whole plan probably would fail of general Indian acceptance.

Johnson Talks With Washington

It was learned that the American emissary, Louis Johnson, had been in touch with the White House regarding the Indian negotiations.

Jinnah said the British negotiator, Sir Stafford Cripps, told him of the Defence Ministry offer this afternoon and that the proposal would be considered by the Moslem League tomorrow.

Mr. Johnson talked again with Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, president of the All-India Congress Party, and Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, a powerful Congress Party leader, after the two had met this morning with Sir Stafford Cripps, British war cabinet member who announced the proposals.

Shortly before, Nehru had declared his opposition to any plan for India from which the peoples of the Indian states were omitted—a declaration which Congress quarters said was an indication the negotiations with Britain were breaking down.

One element of the plan for giving India Dominion status was that separate agreements would be made with the Indian states if they chose to remain apart from a post-war federation.

Air Raid Warning At Madras

Even while discussion continued, India was given a sharp reminder of urgency when Madras had its first air raid warning today although no bombs were dropped and the all clear signal was sounded an hour later. No planes appeared over the great east Indian port.

Nehru's statement coincided with a meeting at which Sir Stafford Cripps was reported to have handed Nehru and the president of the Congress Party, a British war cabinet statement.

Nehru, speaking at a reception given by Thanu Pillay, president of the Travancore state people's conference, described those who talk of treaties with the Indian states as "lunatics, fools or knaves."

He also indicated that whatever the British government or Sir Stafford might say, the Indian people had essential unity, and that he would fight those who meant to disrupt India.

"We have remained united in slavery," he said, "and we shall remain united in freedom."

415 Nazi Planes in 8 Days

Berlin Admits Break As Russians Advance

Associated Press

Russian armies have broken into German lines southwest of Lake Ilmen on the bloody Staraya Russa battlefield, the Berlin radio acknowledged today, while Soviet dispatches indicated Hitler now is throwing clouds of warplanes into the struggle as a prelude to the Nazi spring offensive.

Red army dispatches said the intensified aerial assault cost the Germans 415 planes in eight days, with Soviet losses held to 84. Easter Sunday alone, dispatches said, Russian fliers and gunners destroyed 119 German aircraft in sky combat and attacks on Nazi airbases.

TANKS LEAD WAY

A Berlin broadcast said strong, tank-led Russian forces smashed into Nazi positions in the Lake Ilmen sector, where remnants of the German 16th Army have been trapped for many weeks, but claimed the Germans had "adjusted" their lines after heavy bayonet fighting.

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters conceded the Russians were pressing attacks "on several sectors" of the long, thawing front, but asserted that "our own offensive operations brought further successes." No details were given.

The high command claimed 69 Soviet planes were shot down or destroyed on the ground Monday.

DNB, German news and propaganda agency, quoted Nazi general staff officers as saying winter warfare had "completely exhausted the strength of the Soviet armies." The news agency also reported spring mud was rendering roads impassable and thus precluding large-scale movements.

30 TOWNS TAKEN

KUIBYSHEV (AP)—Thirty German-occupied communities and a large railway station have fallen before fierce Red army attacks in the last two days in one sector of the western front, military dispatches reported today.

With land combats continuing in various regions, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda cited as evidence that the Germans are prematurely tapping their springtime reserves, the use of tanks painted khaki rather than winter white in Nazi counterattacks.

Red army men were officially declared to have killed 2,300 Germans in two days on the Leningrad front and recaptured 18 more settlements on the Kalinin front to the south.

"On another sector of the front," the information bureau said, "Soviet artillerymen in two days fighting destroyed 17 blockhouses and defence works and five machine gun nests."

HUNGARIANS REBEL

Tass declared in an Istanbul dispatch that some men of a Hungarian regiment ordered to the Russian front had revolted. About 70 soldiers who signed a petition saying they did not want to fight the Russians, were arrested and ringleaders were shot, it said.

Tass said "the decline of the fighting spirit of German soldiers and officers" was the subject of an order of the day to the German 23rd Army Corps of Gen. Schubert, a copy of which was reported seized by guerrillas.

Study B.C. Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—A Labor Department spokesman, commenting on a plan submitted to the department by B.C. shipyard union officials, said this afternoon the plan "will be looked into" by Labor Minister Mitchell when he returns Friday from a trip to the east coast.

The plan is for "continuous production" in B.C. shipyards. Employees would work five shifts and lay off the sixth, with no overtime.

Expect 7,000,000 Votes In Manpower Plebiscite

Nearly 7,000,000 Canadians are expected to hold the necessary voting qualifications to cast ballots in the manpower plebiscite April 27, Dominion election officials estimate.

Between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 ballots are being printed on orders of Jules Castonguay, chief plebiscite officer at Ottawa. Provision has to be made for adequate supplies for all polling stations, and names appearing on lists prepared by enumerators may not represent the total who vote.

A qualified voter whose name does not appear on lists prepared by enumerators may cast a ballot after being vouched for by a voter whose name is on the list, and taking an oath.

As an indication of how Canadians turn out to vote, election officials said that the names of 6,588,888 electors appeared on the voters' list for the 1940 election. The total number of ballots cast was 4,672,531.

The civilian Canadians who will place their "X" after the "Yes" or "No" on the plebiscite ballot must have the following qualifications:

1. Be at least 21 years old.
2. Be a British subject by birth or nationality.
3. Have been a resident in Canada 12 months before polling day.
4. Have been ordinarily resident in the polling division on March 30, 1942.

EXEMPTIONS TO RULE

The general rule is that all with such qualifications may cast a ballot, but there are 12 exemptions.

Among those who may not vote are judges appointed by the governor-in-council, Eskimos and Indians ordinarily resident on a reservation and who did not serve with the forces in the First Great War or the present war.

The term "Indian" includes any person of whole or part Indian blood entitled to receive any annuity or other benefit under any treaty with the crown.

Inmates of prisons, persons denied liberty of movement because of mental disease and those detained or interned under the Defence of Canada Regulations at the date of the vote may not cast ballots.

All Japanese, except about 40 who served with the Canadian forces in the last war, are disqualified because of a British Columbia law which denies them the vote.

The regulations set forth that a person cannot vote if he is disqualified by reason of his race from voting in a provincial election and did not serve in war with the Canadian forces.

A further section provides disqualification for a person whose racial origin is that of a country at war with Canada, if at the time the plebiscite regulations were made effective he or she would be disqualified by reason of race in any province from voting in a provincial election and had not served with the Canadian forces.

EXEMPTION CLAIMANTS

The vote is not available to those who have been exempted or claim exemption from military service because of doctrines of religion making them averse to bearing arms, and who, by provincial law, cannot participate in provincial election voting.

Persons who have applied to national war services boards for exemption from compulsory military training under sections covering Mennonites, Doukhobors and conscientious objectors are also disqualified.

Inmates of institutions maintained by the government or a municipality for the poor are also disqualified if they are unable to vote in provincial elections, and did not serve in the armed forces.

Voting privileges are not enjoyed by those who have been disqualified under any law relating to the disqualification of electors for corrupt or illegal practices.

80% of all gonorrheal infections. The remaining 20% he said, may be cured by another course of treatment with the same drug, or by other special methods.

Cautioning against self diagnosis and self treatment, the surgeon-general warned sulfathiazole is safe only if taken under a doctor's orders and under close medical observation.

"If the amount taken is not carefully adjusted," he said, "the drug can cause nausea, dizziness, fever and rash. Worse still, self-dosing with this drug may do such serious damage to the liver and blood cells that the patient never completely recovers. Only under the doctor's direction is the drug safe to use."

Fewer Torpedos

WASHINGTON (AP)—Navy Secretary Frank Knox reported today that German U-boat attacks on shipping along the United States Atlantic coast had dropped off considerably last week and that the drop might be due to protective methods recently enforced by the navy.

Discussing the submarine situation at a press conference, Knox said the navy's experience with U-boat raiders throughout the North Atlantic had shown they operate in waves.

"In preparing your stories," he told reporters, "it will be necessary to keep that fact in mind because it may be responsible for the decline in coastal attacks last week. On the other hand the drop may be due to methods newly adopted."

The navy announced 14 submarine attacks in the western Atlantic and adjacent waters last week. Naval officials said, however, that only two of those, one tanker and a tug with barges, actually had been attacked along the coast during last week. The other attacks were made either prior to March 29 or were in the Caribbean area, which Knox's statement did not cover.

Burma Forces Fall Back, Destroy Plants

NEW DELHI (CP)—British and Indian forces defending the rich oil fields of western Burma have fallen back to new positions within about 65 miles of the main oil area of Minbu after successfully demolishing oil and cement installations at Thayetmyo and Allannmyo, a British-Communist communiqué announced today.

40 MILES TO PROME

Thayetmyo is about 40 miles north of Prome on the Irrawaddy River, up which the Japanese are pressing, and is 125 miles from the nearest point of the Indian frontier on the coast of the Bay of Bengal. Allannmyo is just north across the river from Thayetmyo.

Where the British forces are going was not divulged in the communiqué, which declared "our forces are still in the process of taking up their new positions which are now north of Thayetmyo."

TWO JAP COLUMNS

British authorities declared latest information on Japanese movements showed a column on the west bank of the Irrawaddy was located north of Kama, 25 miles south of Thayetmyo, and another on the east bank of the river about Nyaungbinzeik, with other elements moving to the northeast up the Sino-Japanese border between the Mandalay-Prome and Mandalay-Toungoo Roads.

The communiqué said action Tuesday was confined mainly to contact by enemy patrols on the Irrawaddy front.

It reported, however, that a town in central Burma was bombed with "very few casualties and no damage" resulting.

JAP SQUADRON SIGHTED

CHUNGKING (AP)—Thirteen Japanese transports and six warships have been sighted off Amoy, on the south coast of China, a military spokesman here declared today.

Three Japanese divisions are concentrated on Japanese Formosa island, but their destination has not been ascertained, the spokesman said.

Chinese forces in Burma are engaged with the Japanese striking force to the south of Kyauangan, in the Toungoo region, he added. The Japanese are said to be constructing defences and not advancing.

The spokesman appealed for more aircraft for Burma.

Expect to Increase Farm Production

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians held on farms by government selective service regulations represent about 20 per cent of the working population, compared with more than 38 per cent gainfully employed at work on farms during the first Great War, officials estimated today.

In spite of the smaller farm working force, production is high and may even be increased by reason of mechanized equipment developments.

By the selective service regulations announced March 24, the farm population was stabilized at March 23, workers on the land at that date being considered sufficient to maintain food production for Canada and her allies.

Through men joining the armed services and leaving the farm for industrial employment, officials estimate that up to 10 per cent of all farm workers in Canada left this type of work in 1941. As the labor shortage developed in varying severity in different parts of the country, the need for mechanized farm equipment was reflected in sales figures.

20,000 Youths For Ontario Farms

TORONTO (CP)—Twenty thousand Ontario secondary school students will be needed to work on farms in the holiday season, A. MacLaren, farm service force director, told a meeting of the Secondary School Headmasters' Association.

Students from 12 years of age up are being registered for farm help, he said. Camps are being established for girls from 16 to 19 who will be paid a minimum of 22½ cents an hour for farm work and in such areas as the Niagara Peninsula where piece work prevails the minimum must come up to this hourly rate.

Boys will be paid $20 for the first month they work if they are inexperienced and $25 if they worked on farms last year. For the remainder of their employment their salary will be settled between themselves and their employers, Mr. MacLaren said.

CANADIANS SMASH UP ENEMY FLOTILLA—Swooping down in roaring relays, cannon going full blast, Canadian pilots have been congratulated by the Admiralty for the way they left an enemy E-boat flotilla a mass of wreckage during a daring attack off The Netherlands coast. Among the heroes of the action are: Pilot Officer John Brookhouse, Montreal, and Richard Ellis, of Montreal, both kneeling in the picture. Their flying comrades are: Sgt. W. G. T. MacKay, of Montreal, and Sgt. W. F. McCarthy, of Ottawa, standing, the dog, their mascot.

Canadian Enlistment Figures

35% of Trainees Volunteer for Abroad

OTTAWA (CP)—Out of every 100 men called for duty in Canada under the compulsory service law, approximately 35 volunteer for service anywhere in the world with the army, navy or air force, it is shown by figures compiled from records of the army and the Department of National War Services.

In addition to this 35 per cent, officials estimate at least 15 per cent of the men ordered to report enlist before reporting and so enter the service as volunteers from the start.

The figures provide the first positive indication yet made public of the extent to which the National Resources Mobilization Act is contributing men to the active forces for service anywhere. Under the act the men are required to serve in Canada only unless they volunteer for service elsewhere.

26,701 ACCEPTED

Between the inauguration of the present system of calling men into the forces for the duration of the war and last October, about a six-month period, out of 26,701 men accepted as physically fit at army training centres 9,350 volunteered for service overseas. Of these 322 entered the navy, 6,185 continued with the army and 2,843 entered the air force. Indications are the average enlistment continues at around the 35 per cent level.

These figures apply only to men called up since the original 30-day system was changed. A number of men who received 30 days' training under the first plan enlisted for service anywhere, either while at training centres or after returning to civilian life to await a further call.

As every call for men from the Department of National Defence has been met by the compulsory system, officials consider the response of Canadian youth to direct calls for service to the nation is satisfactory.

LABOR TO YIELD IF INCOMES CUT

DETROIT (AP)—President Roosevelt, in a letter read to a special war conference of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) here today, stated the government's intention to renegotiate contracts with the employers wherever necessary to ensure that the savings from the relinquishments of double or premium time go not to the employer but to the nation.

The letter was addressed to R. J. Thomas, U.A.W.-C.I.O. international president.

The president's message to Thomas came after the union's international executive board had proposed that for the war's duration individual and family incomes be limited to $25,000 a year. In return for which labor would accept non-negotiable defence bonds in lieu of all overtime pay for more than 40 hours a week.

Today's U.A.W.-C.I.O. conference of delegates from 600 local unions was called to act on the national C.I.O.'s recommendation that double time wages for Sunday and holiday work be waived.

Other parts of the program include rigid price-fixing on all necessities and limiting war production profits to 3 per cent on capital investment.

Acceptance of this was recommended by the auto union's board provided that time and a half were paid for work over eight hours a day or 40 hours a week, time and a half for a sixth consecutive day's work, and double time for a seventh.

Soap and water are the best antidote to contact of the skin with Lewisite or mustard gas, according to Dr. Joel Hildebrand of the University of California.

B.C. Teachers To Take Vote On Labor Union

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia teachers will take a referendum before the end of the year on affiliation of their organization with "some recognized labor body."

Delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. Teachers' Federation were on record today as ordering the vote after a recount of ballots at Monday night's session reversed a 117 to 113 vote in favor of union affiliation.

Result of the recount showed 141 against unionization of the federation and 122 in favor.

$900 MINIMUM

Four major recommendations by the executive were approved by the delegates.

That all federation members and prospective members be urged to call for a salary of $900 a year before accepting service in any school.

That every experienced teacher require he be paid an acceptable salary commensurate with his qualifications and experience before accepting a new position.

That rural teachers be advised to use the machinery of the school law, providing mandatory acceptance of arbitration awards, to bring adjustment of their salaries for the coming school year.

J. M. Thomas, Saanich, was elected president of the Rural Teachers' Association at a session at which the organization endorsed affiliation with organized labor.

Conditions among rural teachers were described by speakers as "deplorable" and speakers said they were not getting needed support from the federation.

QUIET IN LIBYA BRITISH REPORT

CAIRO (AP)—The British general headquarters communiqué on the Libyan front said today only: "Patrol activity continued throughout the day yesterday. There was nothing else to report."

The Egyptian Ministry of the Interior announced that Alexandria, site of the great British naval base, was raided by Axis bombers Monday night and eight persons were killed and 32 wounded. Property damage was slight.

The Italian high command reported lively patrol activity on both sides of the Libyan front and said Italian planes attacked British concentrations southeast of El Mechili. It claimed the R.A.F. lost eight planes—six in an attempted raid on Derna and two in a raid on Benghazi which "caused only slight damage."

Malta was attacked again by bombers, the Italians added. (The communiqué said an Italian transport sailing in a convoy was torpedoed several days ago off the Greek coast and only a part of the troops on board could be saved.)

Danger Points

French Fleet Moves, Laval Watched By Allies

By DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON (AP)—Apprehension over the part the Vichy government will play in the momentous events of this year is growing here in view of the emergence of Pierre Laval from the shadows, the transfer of the French battleship Dunkerque from Algiers to Toulon and the outstanding strategic importance of Madagascar to the struggle for control of the Indian Ocean.

The reappearance of Laval, former vice-premier in the Petain government at Vichy, is called "ominous" by qualified sources. It is asserted the Germans chose him to press Vichy for surrender of all or part of the French fleet to German control.

Laval's hand is said to be strengthened in this aim by a new factor—a growing agitation in the German army for direct control of all France by the Germans. This agitation is especially marked in that part of the army concentrated in occupied France and commanded by Gen. Otto von Stuepnagel, it is asserted.

Marshal Petain and Laval conferred recently in and near Vichy, and an official announcement indicated they had reviewed the question of collaboration with Germany. However, advice reaching foreign diplomatic quarters in Bern, Switzerland, last Friday, said Petain had declined to take Laval back into his cabinet, from which Laval was ousted in December, 1940.

NAZI COERCION

Vichy was said to be fully conscious of the feeling of the German army and this, plus the old instrument of blackmail through the control of the lives of thousands of French prisoners in Germany, makes Laval's position stronger than heretofore, London sources said.

At the worst Germany will assume control of the French fleet through pressure on Vichy, they said.

NEW CABINET?

PARIS (AP)—Jean Luchaire, editor of the German-sponsored Paris newspaper Les Nouveaux Temps, predicted today that "France will have a new government at the end of this week or the beginning of the next—unless she has agreed to commit suicide for the benefit of President Roosevelt."

Luchaire, who is also president of the Paris Journalists' Union, said that if "political association between unoccupied France and the Anglo-American bloc" should continue, the Axis would take "measures more harmful to our country than all the diplomatic breaks imaginable between France and the United States."

OLD PEOPLE LIVE ON BREAD AND TEA

EDMONTON (CP)—Gerald V. Pelton of Vancouver, honorary solicitor of the Old Age Pensioners' Society, said here Monday night many Vancouver old age pensioners are living on "bread and tea" near the end of each month because their pension cheques for the month "run out" before the next one is due.

Speaking to a meeting of the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Society of Old Age Pensioners, Mr. Pelton said there is no need to argue the principal of pensions for the aged, as the money paid out to pensioners every month is spent in every community—"every penny of it going back into circulation." He said he thought every merchant, at least, and most people are interested in seeing that the "pioneers of this country" get a "square deal."

Mr. Pelton said the slogan of the pensioners' society today is "51 a day at 65," an age and a wage "which should bring no criticism from the general public."

He said some pensioners in Vancouver must live on as little as six cents a day for room, clothing and heat.

"Whether you are a judge on the bench or digging sewers, and lived in Canada for 20 years, you will have contributed more than the benefits you'll receive under the present pension system," he said.

Mrs. Edith Gostock, former Social Credit member for Calgary, and a member of the pensioners' society, also spoke, declaring pensioners "were not enjoying the abundance intended for them by the Master," and said this was because "human laws are in conflict with divine laws."

HEAVY LOSSES IN BATAAN BATTLE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. war department today reported heavy casualties on both sides marked the furious fighting along the Bataan peninsula front in the Philippines, with the enemy continuing to score "some success" in repeated heavy attacks against the centre of the line.

The communiqué said aerial bombing of the rear areas and the south coast of Bataan was particularly severe throughout Monday.

Anti-aircraft batteries destroyed a Japanese amphibian plane on the water in Manila Bay with horizontal fire.

There was a two-hour enemy artillery barrage from the Cavite shore of the bay against Corregidor and Fort Hughes, but no damage and no casualties resulted, and the guns of the fort laid down a counter-battery fire.

BLACKLIST KEEPS GOODS FROM NAZIS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wide-spread fraud in applications for export licenses to circumvent the policy of blacklisting foreign firms which do business with the Axis is being detected almost daily, United States Board of Economic Warfare officials say.

Some of the attempted frauds are clumsy and are caught immediately. For example, a drug-store in South America, evidently screening a Nazi firm, ordered 250 tons of steel I-beams.

Officials of the board said the blacklist had been so effective in keeping American goods out of enemy hands that foreign concerns or individuals acting for enemy powers now are using dummy names or misusing the names of non-blacklisted firms in applying for American export licenses.

Recently, a line of trucks loaded with small packages of drugs and chemicals for retail stores in Mexico was halted at the border when it was discovered no such stores had ordered the goods.

Many German and Italian orders for South American goods are blocked before the orders are received by the shippers. British mail censors take care of this at West Indies ports.

The United States to date has forbidden trade with 4,394 firms and individuals in Latin America and 1,894 in Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey because of suspected enemy ties.

Liguori Lacombe Fears National Suicide

HAWKESBURY, Ont. (CP)—Liguori Lacombe, founder of the Canadian Party and its sole member in Parliament, said at a meeting here Monday that to adopt conscription for overseas service and to leave Canada "defenceless when the enemy is at her very gate would be committing national suicide."

Mr. Lacombe, member of the House of Commons for Laval-Two Mountains, Quebec, said:

"I am confident there still are enough Canadians in this country of ours to throw the present overboard and force the government to think of our own defence before going to the help of others."

"Let us not repeat the monstrous mistakes of the past. Are Halifax, Vancouver, Saint John, Quebec, adequately protected?" he asked. He asked whether the country's more thickly-populated cities are ready to face the threat of air-borne invasion.

7 Murder Charges

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (CP)—Five men and two women were charged with murder today as a result of an Easter Sunday running gun battle in a Belfast street in which a police officer was killed.

There was no statement from the suspects in a brief court appearance, except that the killing "was not premeditated." The men, aged from 18 to 21, all were war industries workers.

The women were an 18-year-old waitress and a 16-year-old garment stitcher, for both of whom bail was denied.

A sixth man, injured during the gunfight, will be charged when he is released from hospital, police said.

New Manpower Policy Starts Rush Back to Farms

By ELMORE PHILPOTT
QUEBEC CITY — A rather amusing result has followed the government's announcement of its new manpower policy. The French-Canadian workers, who have come into the new war factories in thousands, have started to go back to the land in a big way.

This is both amusing and disconcerting. It is amusing because the French-Canadian is really the most naive person in the world. He does not really want to fight in this war unless he sees that his own vital interests are concerned. The greatest failure on the part of Canada as a nation is that the French-Canadian has not been shown, as he could have been shown and should have been shown, that his vital interests are threatened as acutely as are those of us who live on the shores of the Pacific Ocean.

The big aluminum plant at Arvida has lost hundreds of its workers in the last few days—the men simply went back to the farm following the proclamation which said that all farm workers had to remain on the land for the duration. Cynics will say that it was a low motive on the part of these French-Canadians which sent them there. Their friends, of whom I am one, will not be so uncharitable. I have always believed—and believe so now more than ever—that, if the French-Canadian were properly educated about the realities of the world in which he lives, he would be as fine a citizen as there is anywhere on earth.

DEFENCE OF CANADA

The French Canadian has no love for British Imperialism as such. He is afraid of having to fight "England's wars." But what no one has made him see is that this is not a war which has anything to do with British Imperialism. He has more to lose than almost any other citizen of the free world because, as everyone in this country knows—although at Ottawa where they know it best, no one ever whispers it—if we lose this war, this whole country of Canada simply becomes part of the United States. In such a case, the French-Canadian would lose the right to the official use of his own language and many other ways of life to which he has clung. That is the least worst that could happen to him. The ultimate would be complete Nazification of this part of Canada, which would be a wonderful prize for a dictator like Hitler.

What the French-Canadian does not yet realize is that you cannot defend Canada in Canada alone. What he does not yet realize, sufficiently clearly, is that those of us whose families live on shores soon likely to be attacked are no more anxious than he is to have our homes and our families inadequately defended. But what he does not realize is that, in modern war, the only defence is to seek out your real enemy wherever he may be found and destroy him on his ground, not your own.

The American draftees from Maine, Vermont and New York State, all of which are just across the border from Quebec, are not fighting in Australia for the love of the British Empire nor to maintain the place in the world of the old school tie. They are fighting in Australia for the sake of the United States—just as our boys in Britain are there for the sake of Canada. And when our Canadian army crosses the Channel, as I believe it will within a very few months, it will not be primarily to liberate any of our Allies; it will be to maintain in the world our right to live our lives as we want to live them.

NATIONAL NEGLECT

That fundamental proposition could be sold to the entire French-Canadian population. But to date there has been no genuine attempt to do so. Leaders, without exception, have chosen to side-step, back-step, pussyfoot and postpone. They have never met the real difficulty face to face. That is not the fault of any one man, any one party nor any one race. It is the fault of the whole Canadian nation as such. It can be undone and, in my opinion, it will be undone in the not-distant future.

All this is not to suggest that the French-Canadian effort in this war is as bad as the critics try to pretend. It is not as good as it should be—and only a fraction of what it would have been if we had confronted our worst problems in a direct way long ago. But as measured by what they did in the last war, the French-Canadian war effort is admirable. I am not talking about the industrial end, although that is on a larger scale here than anywhere else except Ontario—I am talking about the actual fighting department. The French-Canadians have raised for active service close on to three times as many men in this war for active service as they raised in the whole last war, both by voluntary and compulsory methods.

Hams Cause Riot In Italian Town

BERNE (AP)—Two succulent hams hanging in a Milan store window caused a near-riot among ration-pinchers Italians who couldn't believe their own eyes.

The incident is related in a Milan dispatch printed in the Fascist newspaper La Stampa of Turin.

The newspaper said a grumbling crowd gathered in front of the store at the spectacle of "two marvellous hams," and began asking one another if the hams were real or a joke.

The crowd grew, traffic was blocked and police were called. Finally the authorities learned that, sure enough, the hams, described as "gifts from God," were real and had been acquired legally.

The proud owner, who had put the hams in the window merely for show purposes, was ordered to hang them out of public view.

Nazi 'Chute Leader At Mediterranean

LONDON (CP)—Morley Richards, military correspondent of the Daily Express, reported today that Lieut.-Gen. Student, who commanded German parachute troops during their assault on the Netherlands, had joined German Field Marshal Albert Kesselring in the Mediterranean area. Richards observed that a new adventure for an air-borne German army was indicated.

Kesselring commanded German air forces in the French campaign and in the bombing of Britain in 1940 and 1941. The correspondent said it was known that hundreds of German gliders and transport planes are concentrated on the north Mediterranean shore and in North Africa.

He said Student had visited Sicily, Greece and Crete recently and might be organizing one of three adventures. One possibility, he said, was a two-way air-borne attack from Libya and Crete on the rear of the British 8th Army in Libya while Marshal Erwin Rommel's North African land forces launched a full-scale offensive against the British forces by land.

Another possibility, he said, was an assault on Suez in an attempt to forge a link with the Japanese in the Indian Ocean.

The third was an air-borne assault on Syria and the British island fortress of Cyprus in the eastern Mediterranean in an effort to skirt Turkey and reach the Mosul oil fields.

No Patent Slows War Effort In Canada, Inquiry Shows

By NORMAN MACLEOD

OTTAWA — While sensational disclosures of patent monopoly practices are being forced before the Senate Defence Investigating Committee at Washington, the government here is holding its own inquiry into the patent situation.

What the Ministry wants to know—and what is being incorporated into a confidential memorandum to be submitted to Cabinet—consists mainly of three things:

1. What royalties—if any—the government is paying to monopoly interests on patents used in defence production?

2. Is any patent that may be wanted for war purposes available to the government?

3. Is the patent being used in the government's $40,000,000 synthetic rubber industry now being established in southwestern Ontario essentially the same one referred to in the testimony of Assistant Attorney-General Thurman Arnold against the Standard Oil Company?

MAY BE MADE PUBLIC

Although the inquiry into the patent situation has been conducted privately, it is expected the information will ultimately be made public. The Opposition, particularly the C.C.F., will probably press at the after-Easter session for assurances that Canada is free of patent monopoly practices which allegedly have impeded the U.S. war effort.

One cabinet minister said: "We are satisfied that our skirts in Canada are completely clean. No case can be cited, our inquiry has shown, in which Canadian patent law has operated to obstruct the war effort."

PATENTS INTERNATIONAL MATTER

The minister shied away, however, from the suggestion that under the War Measures Act the government had access to any patent on register. The patent law, he said, was governed to some extent by international convention, and whether the War Measures Act would override international commitments was questionable. He repeated, however, no patent difficulties had been encountered.

Members of the government suspect the process used in the government-sponsored synthetic rubber enterprise, which will have an annual capacity by the end of 1943 of 34,000 long tons, is the same process as referred to in the Standard Oil Company case. This is being checked.

In the meantime, the authorities are silent as to how they got the patent.

B.C.-Alaska Railroad Talked in Washington

By WATSON DAVIS

WASHINGTON — A wartime railroad from the United States through British Columbia to Alaska, instead of the projected military highway, is an engineering possibility.

A road of steel connecting industrial America with the northern strategic outposts in Alaska, on the face of it, has many advantages over the road for trucks that has been authorized.

First of all, it could probably be built almost as quickly. It would be able to carry about 20 times as much freight. It would need practically no rubber, prime strategic material of this war, whereas the highway would be only useful with a major expenditure of this precious material for truck tires.

Lying idle in this country are enough good, second-hand rails to build the U.S.-Alaska route. The ties would come right out of the forests along or near the route. Experience of rough-and-ready railroad engineers shows that low-speed freight service can be maintained over track laid with little ballast even over unstable ground such as would be encountered along part of the route. Just as in the case of older railroads, there would be crews of trackmen continually rebuilding the road, but this probably would be little more work than would be needed on a freight highway.

Whether there is a chance that the government's plans can be revised rapidly enough to get such a strategic railroad under way at this crucial time is not known. There are experienced railroad engineers, many of them in other sorts of engineering, who would be eager to plunge into this new pioneering adventure.

Within a matter of days, with red tape hacked away, the two bands of steel could be started northward. There would be a re-enactment of the scenes of America's westward ho! days when steel was laid across the continent. There would be the spirit of the construction gangs that even in these days push mining railroads into untapped country to haul out mineral riches.

Without burdening the army with the task, an engineering staff could be swiftly organized, experienced trackmen requisitioned from railroads in the country and some of the CCC lads put to work on the job to supplement the labor already in the areas.

With fast action, tractors and other construction machinery could be borrowed from Alaskan and Canadian mines and taken to the line of the railroad over the still frozen ground, ready for a summer of intensive work.

One freight train would carry many times the burden of a whole convoy of trucks. The fuel of the railroad engines would be ob-

400,000 On Active Service

Canadian Forces Now Approaching 1918 War Peak

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's armed forces of the land, sea and air are approaching the maximum strength attained in the last year of the first Great War. Something more than 400,000 men now are believed to be on active service in Canada and overseas, which compares with a force of more than 450,000 in the Canadian army at Nov. 1, 1918. That figure, considered about the peak for the last war, included 418,000 overseas and 27,423 in training or on other duties in Canada.

Exact figures for the present strength of the forces are not released by the authorities, but the latest official statement, in February, reported more than 28,000 in the navy, more than 265,000 voluntarily enlisted in the army, more than 16,000 conscripted for home defence and on active service for duration of the war in the army, and more than 100,000 in the air force, a total of more than 409,000. Enlistments have been proceeding since then.

Canada's total enlistments in the first Great War were 619,636 and of these 424,589 served overseas. The corresponding figures for the present war are not available but it is somewhat above 450,000 allowing for casualties and discharges to date.

CONSCRIPT FIGURES 16

There is some uncertainty about the total number actually drafted into the forces under conscription in 1917-18 but a recent return to the House of Commons placed it at 124,588, of whom a certain number were on harvest or other leave and never actually entered training. It is estimated 51,000 drafted men served overseas.

The present compulsory system made no provision for exemptions when introduced in the summer of 1940. Men between 21 and 24, single or widowers without children, were liable to call.

There now are more than 44,000 men who were called up compulsorily on active service with the Canadian forces. Many of these have volunteered for service anywhere and many others have entered the air force and the navy.

Lightest common bird in the United States is the hummingbird, weighing about one-twelfth of an ounce; heaviest is the wild turkey, trumpeter swan and Canada goose, weighing 15 to 31 pounds.

Obtainable from Alaskan and other coal mines whereas the gasoline for trucks on the proposed highway would have to be hauled in tank cars from the south.

In the minds of engineers, the sound of sledge is heard already hammering a new road to victory—if railroading has a chance at building this essential link.

Tell Story of Rabaul

1,500 Japs Killed By 150 Australians

MELBOURNE (CP)—The bloody story of the Japanese conquest of Rabaul, New Britain, in which 150 Australians mowed down some 1,500 Japanese on a single 200-yard stretch of beach, was told today following the arrival at Australian bases of some 600 survivors of the Australian garrison.

Rabaul, former capital of the island, fell Jan. 23 after the Japanese had pitted a landing force of 20,000 men, a formidable naval force and an air fleet of at least 150 bombers, dive bombers and fighters against Rabaul's Australian garrison of 1,400 men and an air force of five planes.

Rabaul's casualties were 700 killed, wounded or missing, while Japanese losses were in excess of 2,000.

It was at Ralaua Beach that a unit of 150 Australians blazed away at a Japanese force caught in barbed wire at the water's edge.

Over a 200-yard beach front, it was reported, Japanese dead were stacked six feet high as an estimated 1,500 fell before the Australian fire—and the Australian cost was only 20 men slightly wounded.

SEVEN JAP PLANES DOWNED

The aerial attack on Rabaul, 800 miles northeast of the Australian mainland, began Jan. 20 with 60 bombers and 20 fighters.

Against them the defenders were able to put into the air only five Wirraways—single-engine, general purpose monoplane. The Australian planes accounted for two enemy craft before they were shot down, leaving Rabaul entirely without air protection. Anti-aircraft fire brought down five other planes.

Two days later, refugees from the island said, 110 Japanese aircraft bombed Rabaul heavily, blasting Præd Point fortress for an hour. They attempted to land on the airport, but demolition charges were exploded and two of the invading planes were destroyed. Machine gun fire brought down a third.

JAPS SWARM IN

The actual invasion began at 2.30 in the morning by a force of Japanese with blackened arms and faces and clad in shorts and singlets.

That force was repulsed, but at dawn thousands of troops came, covered by the guns of warships and 100 dive-bombers and fighters. The Australian garrison fought many landing barges with 50 to 100 men in each before the terrific slaughter of Ralaua Beach.

By noon the Japanese were swarming everywhere, survivors of the defence said, and further resistance was seen to be useless. Some Australian troops then withdrew through Okopo toward the bush.

Four hundred others took the Malabonge Road toward Rabata, a village 30 miles distant, harried by Japanese planes. At Rabata food was picked up and the troops moved into the jungle for what turned out to be a struggle of many weeks with mud, mosquitoes, malaria, rain and crocodile-infested rivers.

On many days, veterans of the struggle said, each man had only a single biscuit and one twelfth of a tin of beer. Later, natives helped them supplement their food supply with yams and coconuts until they could reach Australian-held points on the island.

Laval Bobs Up

ONE OF THE CLOSELY GUARDED secrets in Vichy is the inner meaning of the reappearance of Laval on the French political stage. The public has not been told what transpired between him and Petain at their recent conference. Swiss reports have it that the aged Marshal refused to consider the return of the former vice-premier to his cabinet. Other accounts of the meeting are intended to convey the impression that the men of Berlin are beginning to use this archpriest of collaboration with the Reich for new and more intensive endeavors to obtain possession of all or part of the immobilized French fleet. Some observers in Vichy see the German army's hand in the newly-revived technique—plus the old instrument of blackmail through the control of the lives of the thousands of French prisoners in Nazi camps.

To what extent the people of France as a whole are impressed by the promise of return of their men folk as the quid pro quo for more favors to their taskmasters is another matter which permits of little beyond surmise. The men of Berlin are adept at dangling bait of this kind before a populace still bewildered by the events of nearly two years ago. On the other hand, however, it must be obvious to all who still have the will and capacity to think for themselves that the supposedly invincible Germany of 1940 is no longer in a position to make good in 1942 the threats which until only recently struck terror into the hearts of most of the people of a once proud nation. The ever-increasing power of the Royal Air Force, the swelling might of the United States, the utter failure of the Nazi Wehrmacht to annihilate the armies of the Soviet Union, and the continued success attending the Russian offensive assuredly have left their impress on the average person.

Not only the future of the French fleet is causing uneasiness in the capitals of the United Nations. The Japanese would like to get a foothold on Madagascar and thereby seriously interfere with the Allied lifeline in the Indian Ocean. Distrust of Vichy's collaborationists is emphasized when it is recalled how the Nipponese were assisted in their Pacific drive by the accommodation granted them in French Indo-China. Were Vichy to turn the blind eye on the strategic island off the east coast of Africa—a course of action not to be regarded as out of the question—the whole attitude of the United Nations toward the Petain government would immediately undergo a change.

On this aspect of the new developments in Vichy, actual or merely rumored, the United States is keeping a particularly vigilant watch. Only a few days ago Washington seemed to be satisfied with the assurances received from the Petain government, both with respect to the neutrality of the French fleet and in regard to further collaboration with Germany and her European Axis partner. How much these were worth will be proved only by the course of events. In the meantime, however, the French people must be realizing that further concessions to their mortal enemy will mean still more drastic measures on the part of their democratic friends to offset them.

Ceylon Was Prepared

IF THE JAPANESE WERE UNCERTAIN about the efficacy of British defenses in Ceylon, if they had any idea that what happened in other parts of the Pacific battle arena could be duplicated there, they obtained the most convincing kind of information in the early morning hours of Easter Sunday. A raiding party of approximately 75 planes set out on the gay adventure, either from one or more aircraft carriers or from the Andaman Islands, but at least 27 are known to have been completely destroyed, with probably another five meeting the same fate, while an additional 25 were more or less seriously damaged.

Apart from the purely psychological and material value of this proof that the lessons of the Malayan Peninsula have been learned—and that is important—the encounter reduced still further the enemy's supply of aircraft now in operation far from the home base. But what the people of the United Nations are anxiously waiting to be told is that bomber and fighter strength has reached comparative equality with that of the enemy over Burma. The daily announcement that both British and Chinese forces on that front continue to withdraw in the face of superiority in numbers, and invariably through intense and persistent pressure from the air, is difficult to reconcile with the companion announcements from London and Washington of new records in aircraft production.

Admittedly, the problem of cargo space continues to irritate departments of supply, especially because fighter planes must travel to the distant theatres of the conflict by sea. However, by reason of the fact that airpower seems to be the principal factor determining events on the approaches to India, it is to be hoped that the Ceylon success presages others elsewhere if only to prevent the enemy from setting foot on the soil of the great sub-continent proper.

How Compliant Are We?

HOW MANY CANADIANS INVEST three dollars for the Parliamentary session as reported verbatim in Hansard we do not know. The majority of them no doubt depend upon accounts of the proceedings of the House of Commons which appear in the newspapers. But a great deal of these discussions must of necessity be omitted. The exigencies of space determine the choice of material used. In the issue of March 20, however, is an interesting contribution from Mr. J. H. Harris, Conservative member for Danforth, who was warning his colleagues and the public generally about the dangers of complacency and how, even during the year before war descended upon the world, some people "in our financial circles" were taking things for granted. Said Mr. Harris in the Commons:

"I hold in my hand a card which a man presented to me in my office in 1938. . . He asked for his card back, but when I saw what was on it I retained it and still have it. He carried with him an introduction from one of the banks of Canada backing him to the extent of $100,000 in any transaction that he might consummate. This card reads as follows: 'Dr. Ing. Ernst H. Bluman, Director der Vereinigte Stearinwerke, G.M.B.H., Hamburg, Germany, Tel. 34.6021/23.' That means that he was a director of the stearine manufacturing industries of Germany. His address on this continent was the Hotel Gladstone, 114 East 52nd Street, New York City."

What puzzled Mr. Harris was the fact that this man—"just before the war"—a high ranking officer in the German army, was backed by one of Canada's financial institutions to the extent of $100,000. He went on to explain that stearic acid comes from the manufacture of glycerine, and that 100 pounds of stearine makes 13 pounds of stearic acid. "I cannot help but think," concluded the member for Danforth, "of the complacency of the head of that financial institution who was quite willing to introduce a German spy to industry in this country. It just shows that among our ordinary citizens; it seems to have entered into the whole fabric of the Canadian people. This illustration may not be the right sort to use, but it just shows how we are thinking." It ought to be safe to say that no more thinking of this type exists in Canada today. But there is ample evidence that some mental processes still require drastic adjustment to the realities of these times.

Clumsy Propaganda

ON THE FRONT PAGE OF THIS newspaper yesterday we printed a picture of the business section of Aachen showing how it appeared after the recent visit from the Royal Air Force. It was originally published in a Nazi magazine with the object of proving to the outside world how British bombers had concentrated on residential or purely business property with no relationship to the nation's war industries.

Such illustrated propaganda, of course, is both foolish and clumsy. Most Germans know their Germany, her history and her business, better than the people of many countries know the intimate details of even their own immediate neighborhoods. While the regimented populace of the Reich in the mass may know a good deal more about Aachen's historical relationships and its antiquity, they understand, too, that proximity of huge coal-bearing deposits was responsible for the establishment years ago of important iron and steel works in what was destined to become a busy community of nearly 170,000 souls. At that stage of Aachen's development the airplane had not been devised. The problem of segregating industrial establishments from purely business or residential property was the least of the troubles of the burghers of the last century. Nor is the outside world ignorant of these circumstances.

What is true of the German city under the slopes of the Ardennes, of course, is true of similar communities in Britain. Sheffield is a case in point. Industries and homes in various parts of that vital north of England town are neighbors in fact. Some of them are establishments vital to Britain's war effort. In other words, the Aachens and the Birmingham, Essens and the Sheffield, suffer a common "inconvenience" in modern war.

MALICIOUS RUMORS

From B.C. Financial News
Knowingly and otherwise there are people in Canada busy spreading destructive rumors.

There is the rumor that every war contract is on a "cost plus" basis—that the more the contractors run up in expenses, the more they make. That the shipyards, for instance, don't care whether or not men loaf, as the government "pays the shot," anyway. Entirely wrong! Ships, like army shirts or shoes, are built on a fixed price basis and if the contractors don't get production they can lose a lot of money. If they make a good profit, the excess profits tax comes and takes most of it away from them.

There is the rumor that if you have a friend in the government, you can get a preference in the placing of government contracts. Wrong again. Never in the history of Canada has so much government money been spent without the intrusion of patronage into the picture; never has a government been more zealous and enterprising in getting back from contracting firms the lion's share of profits by direct return of the money to the treasury. Never before has there been so large and efficient an auditing organization "covering" the war contractors, digging into their records and recapturing unduly large profits for the benefit of the country.

Bruce Hutchison HOLE IN GROUND

IT IS TO BE NOTED that no gold mines with which I am associated, like the Golden Calf, for example, are mining gold today. We are too patriotic to waste the nation's energy on such enterprises. The fact that we never discovered any gold to mine may have had something to do with it also. But just the same, when I think of the nation's need for skilled workers, for materials, for every kind of energy, it is inspiring indeed to a patriot to know that the buildings of the Golden Calf are empty, the machinery idle, the vast hole in the ground undisturbed and silent in the depths of the hills. No energy is being wasted there in wartime, no labor, no materials. All is as quiet as a grave and in the bottom of it is buried the life savings of many patriots like me who would scorn to dig them out.

Meanwhile all over Canada miners who are badly needed to dig copper and other useful materials are madly tearing at the earth's substance to extract gold which is of no use to anyone. The gold is mined at enormous expenditure of energy, refined at a heavy expense of machinery and materials, and then shipped down to Fort Knox, where, with more expense, it is carefully lowered into the ground again and forever sealed in the silence. This at a time when every worker, every ounce of material, is needed. This while certain vital mining operations are crying out for skilled miners.

Until the United States entered the war, of course, it could be argued that we must ship gold there to get American dollars to buy war materials. Now there is no need to do it. The United States would finance any imports we require, as it is already financing most of the Allied world. If it had any sense it would refuse to let us use up our energies and our materials mining gold which it doesn't want.

But we go on madly heaving the useless gold out of the ground, using men, using materials, using transportation, burning up our energy in a pursuit which no one but the author of "Alice in Wonderland" could have imagined. Indeed, had he put such a charming conceit into his book it would have been considered wilder, more fantastic and more delightful than the Mad Hatter's tea party. Thank heaven the Golden Calf is not involved in this reckless process. The good old Calf died patriotically long before the war began, and the vast, silent hole in the mountainside is the monument to a group of patriots who refused to be bought by gold. Ages hence men will look into this hole and say that here surely was the seat of some great miracle in a vanished civilization. They will be right. But it would have been a greater miracle if we had found any gold.

PROGRESS REPORT

THE LITTLE BOY from next door tells me he is afraid he got more than he bargained for in the white mouse. The creature was recaptured recently after a prolonged search by a sheriff's posse. They discovered him comfortably asleep in the linen cupboard. But whereas he was purchased on the strict understanding that he was indeed a male and the last of his noble line, there is a suspicion now that he may be near the point of presenting a large family of little mice to his owner. That prospect, you will agree, is rather alarming next door. And the worst of it, says the owner, is that white mice often revert to their natural color. They may shortly have a family of mulattoes next door.

HARD TIMES

THINGS YOU MAY RECALL were rather hard in 1932. They called it the depression. The production of all kinds of goods fell off to a new low, there was poverty everywhere and men eating out of garbage cans in all the great cities of America, while, at the same time, the well-to-do were having a very good time and the middle income brackets were enjoying the phenomenon of low prices, which made their incomes worth more than ever, while they complained bitterly of hard times.

Well, the figures just issued in Washington indicate that during the next 18 months the income of America will drop to something below that of 1932. That is to say, the usable income. There will be less goods available than in the worst year of the depression, although more goods will be made than ever before in the history of the world. Most of them will not be usable. They will be weapons.

Thus we are entering an era poorer than we have known in America in modern times. But it will not be like 1932. Then a vast part of the limited output of goods was in the form of ice-boxes, radios and gadgets. Now whatever goods are available will be essential, more or less. Also, there will be a fairly equal distribution. There will be wide-scale rationing. In other words, while part of America almost starved to death in 1932, now we shall share the poverty. Three years hence you will hardly know America in its overalls.

The dub at golf went out for his first game on a new course, took his stance, gave a wild swing and missed completely. "Gosh," he explained to his partner, "it's a good thing I found out right away that this course is two inches lower than the one I play on at home."

Parallel Thoughts

And the Lord sent fiery serpents among the people, and they bit the people; and much people of Israel died.—Numbers 21:6.
The seeds of our punishment are sown at the same time we commit the sin.—Hesiod.

Battalion after battalion broke under the strain, shocked and demoralized by the bombing and their despair at never seeing a friendly airplane in the sky.—Dutch officer describing Allied troops in Battle of Java.

Shipping and Wars

"Victory, in this war, may depend on the ships we build—1942 will be the greatest shipbuilding year in the history of the world. This story gives some records of the past, and prospects for the future."

Gross tonnage of the merchant shipping of the world totaled 68,509,000 tons in 1939, the opening year of the war. At the beginning of the last war it was 49,089,000 tons, but ships had grown bigger in the interval and the actual number was less—30,836 in 1914, 29,763 in 1939. Relative holdings of some of the great powers were as follows:

Shipping of Three Greatest Shipping Nations (Figures in Tons)
	United Kingdom	United States	Japan
1914	19,256,000	7,928,000	1,708,000
1939	21,002,000	11,470,000	5,630,000

The greatest percentage increase took place in Japan, but that comes from the relatively low level at the start of the period. The greatest actual increase in tonnage was also in Japan. Much of the American tonnage increase was on the Great Lakes. Great Britain continued to lead the world. Her percentage of the total declined but in total tonnage Britain was still far in the lead. Germany started the World War with 5,459,000 and entered this war with 4,482,000—almost 1,000,000 tons less—the only great nation to show a decline in the period covered. It was not only a case of guns before butter, but of tanks before ships.

Merchant shipbuilding did not develop very rapidly after the opening of the last war. Unrestricted submarine warfare in 1917 gave urgency to action. Then records were set up. Production was as follows:

	Tons
1918	5,447,000
1919	7,144,000
1920	5,861,000

It will be seen that much of this building took place after the war. The initial impulse given by the submarine carried on. Ships which were under construction when the war ended were finished after the war. Figures of world tonnage were not available for 1917 and 1918, but by 1919, gross tonnage was greater than in 1914, greater than in any other year in world history up to that time. The increase continued. It is rather remarkable to find that total world tonnage today is more than 20,000,000 tons in excess of 1913—the year before the Great War—in percentage, an increase of 46 per cent.

If the Great War stimulated shipbuilding, the great depression meant its temporary suspension. In these years the records of production were as follows:

	Tons
1932	726,591
1933	489,016
1934	967,419

Japan has been an erratic builder. Like other maritime nations, production was spurred during the Great War, then from 1922 to 1927 it dropped sharply. There was a renewal of activity in 1928, 1929 and 1930; then another decline and renewed activity in 1934, 1935 and 1936. The highest production was 611,000 tons in 1936.

From Toronto Globe and Mail
Captain Elmore Philpott of Victoria and Mr. Hertel LaRoque of Montreal are making a highly commendable effort to introduce the English-speaking and French-speaking groups to each other by means of a cross-country speaking tour. They are well qualified for the job. Captain Philpott is a veteran of the last war who emerged in a badly crippled condition, winner of the Military Cross, a noted writer and a fine speaker. Mr. LaRoque is a brilliant campaigner, a descendant of De Sable of Chateaugay fame. They have a right to speak for the two sections of the country in the name of patriotism and a united nation.

The campaign, started in Vancouver with little advance notice, has attracted increased attention as it proceeded, although in this city their audience, some 1,200, was only about half that in Winnipeg. At each meeting during the question period curiosity was shown as to the financial sponsors of the trip, and the speakers were not free to provide the information. The inquiries undoubtedly grew out of political suspicion, as the promotion of Lieutenant-General McNaughton for the Prime Ministership is in the van of the movement. This is its weakness. General McNaughton is a great soldier and is needed where he is. True, he has shown a disposition to cultivate public good will by press interviews and public statements, more like a politician than a soldier interested first and last only in the direction of all talent to the winning of the war, but no one questions his ability to lead the armed forces, and this is not less important than leading the government. That he is not a party to the plan hardly needed saying.

Whoever is backing the speaking campaign is doing a good job through two able platform men in promoting an affirmative vote for the plebiscite, if not in its premiership proposal. General McNaughton is held in high esteem in Quebec. We would like to see an appeal in that province for support of the plebiscite on the ground that it will be backing for the corps commander as a military leader.

The attitude now seems to be that men without teeth can live just as well in the army as they have up to now out of the service.—Brig-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey.

Britain's War Production Now Equals Nazi Output

Thanks to the harmonious relation achieved between British labor and their employers, production has been speeded up to such an extent that the 22,000,000 workers in Britain are now producing as much war materials as the 140,000,000 workers engaged in supplying the Nazi war machine. So great an effort has been made in Britain that aircraft production there now exceeds that of the United States.

SEND BULK TO RUSSIA

Rt. Hon. Margaret Bondfield, former Minister of Labor in Britain, electrified about 500 members of the Women's Canadian Club Monday afternoon with the above disclosure of Great Britain's tremendous all-out war effort. She related that the bulk of Britain's aircraft production has been sent to Russia and that the bulk of the planes used on the Russian fronts are British.

Great Britain had equipped at her own expense the largest U.S. gun factory. "We are grateful to the United States, but I feel it is my duty to let people know what Britain is doing," she said, amid applause.

After declaring that the people of "the tight little island" are determined to die, if need be, rather than accept the Nazi philosophy, the speaker envisioned a post-war world in which an international organization built on sounder lines than the League of Nations, a world in which there is international economic control, no trade restrictions, no restriction on the power of production, and founded on co-operation rather than competition.

HAS HAD REVOLUTION

Miss Bondfield painted an inspiring picture of Britain's all-out

war effort, showing how all the resources of industry, manpower—and woman power—had been harnessed to this end. And it had all been done at the urging of, and with the fullest assistance of, all classes of the community.

"We don't expect a revolution at the end of the war like some countries. Great Britain has already undergone her revolution—of fundamental thought, of relationships, of daily practice," she commented.

She emphasized the responsibility of the individual to the war effort. "We in Great Britain have learned in the hard school of experience that we cannot delude ourselves as to our own individual responsibility. It is up to each individual to take care of himself or herself in the case of an air raid. It's no use running to the air warden and expecting him to answer a lot of questions as to how to put out fires or handle incendiary bombs."

Each individual has also learned to accept equalitarian responsibility to authority—of carrying out whatever authority told them to do—irrespective of social or political differences. "When you face death, as the people of Britain have, your sense of values change. Things which seemed important, such as social and political differences, sink into unimportance."

Miss Bondfield spoke of the closer understanding effected between employers and labor. The Essential Work order, under which labor could be manipulated by the Ministry of Labor to fit into any required place under the war strategy; had resulted in a fine relationship between the trade unions and employers. Labor had proved that it was as keen as anybody to win the war, and its output had increased tremendously.

Reference was also made to the mobilization of the women power of the country. Here a revolution had taken place in the world of industry, and today women in Britain were doing every job except that of picking coal at the pit face. She spoke of the magnitude of the problem of the evacuation of children and the strain upon the educational facilities caused by the "blitz" and the scarcity of teachers.

The question of rationing had become almost a moral issue, and Miss Bondfield added "we despise that individual that would dare to try to get just a little more than his neighbor or than was his due. It simply isn't done in England now."

Mrs. W. H. Yardley expressed the thanks of the club to Miss Bondfield. Mrs. T. H. Health Workers Urged To Educate Public In Nutrition

The urgent necessity of educating the public to eat properly-balanced food was stressed by Dr. G. F. Amyot, provincial health officer, at the opening session this morning of the three-day meeting of the Institute for Public Health Workers, being held at the Empress Hotel today, Wednesday and Thursday, under the auspices of the Provincial Board of Health.

Dr. Amyot pointed out to his audience, which included public health nurses from all over British Columbia, and full-time medical health officers, that an exhaustive survey of the Dominion showed over 40 per cent of Canadians were undernourished and another 40 per cent on the borderline. He quoted Dr. J. L. Pett, director of the newly-created Nutrition Service Board in Ottawa, who after a careful analysis of soil from various parts of Canada, stated that home-grown food contained all the natural vitamins and minerals necessary for the average person's good health, and that the present tendency of the public to eat pills and tablets containing advertised minerals was unnecessary.

Dr. Amyot informed his audience that they were the "spearshead of action" in their communities to immediately correct the appalling state of the public health, and emphasized the necessity of attacking the problem at its root, that is, in maternal and child welfare.

MENTAL HYGIENE

An enlightening address on mental hygiene was given by Dr. Mary Luff, formerly of England, now on the Greater Vancouver Metropolitan Health Committee. At this afternoon's session, the audience heard a talk on nutrition by Miss Jennie I. Wednesday, Dr. J. M. Tedford, physician-in-charge of Education, Division of Venereal Disease Control for B.C., and Mr. E. Bowering, public health engineer, will speak, and Thursday delegates will hear Miss Grace M. Coffman, supervisor of nurses, Tacoma Public Health-Nursing Association, Tacoma, Wash., and Dr. G. E. Kincaid, assistant director, Division of Tuberculosis Control for B.C.

Dr. J. S. Cull, assistant provincial health officer, presided at this morning's meeting, while Dr. Amyot was in the chair this afternoon. The delegates were welcomed by Mr. P. de N. Walker, deputy Provincial Secretary.

Mrs. F. W. Baylis was elected delegate to the provincial annual meeting. Patriotic posters were sent to the chapter's adopted school at Rolle, B.C., and two table lamps donated to the Gordon Head Hospital.

'MOTHER USED MUSTARD BATHS TO HELP STOP DAD'S COLDS...

AND THE DOCTOR PUT MUSTARD ON MY CHEST WHEN I WAS ILL.

SAYS 'BUDDY' MCMURPHY

EVER since "Buddy," Mrs. W. McMurphy's young son, was seriously ill with a bronchial congestion, Mrs. McMurphy has realized the grave danger that can lurk in a neglected cold. She has realized, too, how helpful mustard is as a means of overcoming colds and certain chest complaints. Mrs. McMurphy gives all the credit for "Buddy's" recovery to her doctor and the mustard treatment he used. The McMurphy family live in Regina, Sask., where winters are long, cold and windy. And Mrs. McMurphy sees to it that they take no chances with colds. When either of her two boys or her husband show symptoms of a cold, she insists that the one afflicted takes a mustard foot bath. For years, the time-tested remedy, mustard, has been a guardian of health in this home.

After a long period of treatment a few years ago, Mrs. M. Harvey of Red Deer, Alberta, recovered from a threatening chest condition. Today she is a healthy, busy woman, but still has to be careful not to let a cold or congestion affect her chest. "If I feel any tightness whatever in my chest," she said, "I take a full mustard bath just before retiring. I take two heaping tablespoons of mustard, mix to a paste with cold water and then place it in the bath. As soon as I am ready for bed, I have a mustard poultice placed on my chest, leaving it on for not more than 20 minutes. This treatment is most helpful. It aids in dispersing the tightness—helps my breathing to become normal and there has never been any return of the old chest trouble."

The strongest proof that mustard is reliable, lies in the fact that thousands use it year after year. Let mustard help to relieve you when you have a cold or feebly and depressed with gripe or some other winter infection. Use it to help relieve pains of neuralgia, rheumatism, neuritis and other ailments which commonly affect you. If symptoms are serious be sure to consult your doctor.

Allan Tribute By Col. Osborne

OTTAWA (CP)—Col. H. C. Osborne, as chairman of the Dominion Drama Festival, today paid tribute to Miss Martha Allan, who died at Victoria, as one of the festival's outstanding workers—"an animating spirit, loyal, resourceful, hopeful, enthusiastic."

His statement said: "No heavier tidings could have been received by countless friends, and particularly those interested in the development of the community theatre in Canada, than the news of the death of Martha Allan."

"Here was one of those rare, vivid spirits of which it may be said 'we shall not look upon its like again.' Her faith and enthusiasm were unbounded, her mind clear and vigorous, her character at once winning and compelling."

"The Dominion Drama Festival owes her much. At its inception and through the years of its success she was an amazing spirit, loyal, resourceful, hopeful, enthusiastic. The Montreal Repertory Theatre, Miss Allan's creation, has always been one of the festival's bright ornaments."

VISITED HERE

Funeral service will be held in Montreal Thursday for Miss Allan, daughter of Sir Montague and Lady Allan.

Miss Allan had been visiting the Pacific coast on doctor's orders following a serious illness. She had only recovered from this illness a month ago. She was the guest in Victoria of Mrs. W. Wingfield, Mrs. Percy Stephenson and Mrs. Dola Cavendish.

She was the organizer of the Montreal Repertory Theatre. She wrote plays, she directed plays and she herself was a notable amateur comedienne.

The First Great War found her a student in Paris. She immediately enlisted as an ambulance driver and after serving some time in France went to England to serve on the staff of a hospital administered by her mother.

She lost two younger sisters in the torpedoing of the Ss. Lusitania and also lost her brother, Hugh, shot down in his first service flight across the English Channel.

After the war she returned to Canada and became the moving spirit in a little theatre group. They called themselves the Theatre Guild of Montreal and held rehearsals in the coach house of her father's paternal residence, Ravenscrag.

After the group became the

M.R.T. in 1930 Miss Allan produced the opening play "The Perfect Alibi." When she was not engaged with M.R.T. work Miss Allan took an interest in music and was an organizer of the Montreal musical festivals, held annually.

In 1935 her contribution to Canadian drama was recognized when she was given the Canadian Drama Award "for outstanding service in the development of the Canadian theatre."

Her play "All of a Summer's Day," won the Sir Barry Jack Trophy in a Dominion drama festival in 1936.

On the outbreak of the present war Miss Allan devoted all her energy to organizing her M.R.T. entertainment company to travel to military camps and barracks.

The wedding will take place at St. Mark's Church, Saanich, on May 1, at 8 p.m.

Mrs. P. B. Scourrah and Mrs. J. O. Cameron will preside at the silver tea given by the Comitas Club Saturday at the home of Mrs. Harold P. Johns, 850 Richmond Road. The affair is given in aid of the club's war fund and proceeds will be used to purchase wool for garments to be sent overseas. During the afternoon Miss Grace Genn will give piano solos. A door prize has been donated by the Century Arts. Miss Barbara Leigh is convenor of the affair.

Easter Weddings

JONES-DAVIS

At St. Mark's Church, Saturday evening, Rev. O. L. Jull united in marriage Mary Josephine, second daughter of Mrs. A. S. Davis of Wellington, B.C., and Lance-Bombardier Lawrence Arthur Jones, R.C.A., A.F., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Jones, Northfield, B.C. The Easter decorations made a pretty background for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. J. W. Hancock, the bride wore a floor-length dress in white silk sheer with high neckline and full bishop sleeves. Her veil of French silk tulle fell to the floor from sprays of lily of the valley in her hair, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and pink and white sweet peas.

The bride's sisters attended her. Mrs. J. W. Hancock was matron of honor in a floor-length frock of yellow chiffon, and Miss Margaret Davis wore a similar frock of pale blue, both carrying bouquets of spring flowers. Mr. R. Meredith was groomsmen. During the signing of the register, Miss Elsie George sang a solo.

About 70 guests were welcomed at the reception held in St. Mark's Hall, which was banked with spring flowers. Mrs. Davis received the guests in a rose-colored gown with a corsage bouquet of violets. The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with pale pink roses, and flanked by vases of pale pink carnations. The handmaid white lace cloth was posed over an undercloth of delicate green. Miss Phyllis Robertson was responsible for the table decoration, and looked after the buffet supper arrangements.

For the honeymoon on the mainland, the bride left in a teal blue tailored suit with beige accessories. They will make their home in Victoria.

MUNROE-EVANS

Against a background of plum blossoms, iris, tulips, daffodils and Easter lilies the wedding took place Monday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Evans, 1253 Chapman Street, when Rev. T. G. Griffiths united in marriage their daughter, Edith Davis, and Mr. Alec Eberts Munroe, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Munroe, 875 Craigflower Road.

A petal blue frock with black accessories and black straw hat with matching blue crown and veil was chosen by the bride, who was given away by her father, her corsage bouquet being of pink roses, freesias and forget-me-nots. Miss Elsie Ratcliffe was her only attendant in a dusty rose dress with matching hat and black accessories. Pink carnations and freesias made up her bouquet.

Mr. Charles Preston acted as best man. Presiding at the organ was Mrs. R. Mason, and Mrs. J. King accompanied the soloist, Miss M. Johnson, when she sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

Friends gathered informally after the ceremony around the bridal table which was covered with a silver bowl of pink carnations flanked by tapers in silver holders. The three-tiered cake stood in a beautifully-decorated window recess with pink and white streamers and lighted tapers and silver vases of white carnations. Mrs. Evans was costumed in queen's blue with a corsage of yellow freesias, and Mrs. Munroe wore a black crepe redingote costume with a corsage of pink carnations.

For her honeymoon trip to the mainland, the bride donned a black topcoat with a pink trim over her wedding ensemble. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Munroe will live in Victoria.

Mrs. A. Lewis of Nanaimo and Mrs. V. McAllister of Seattle were guests at the wedding.

CASTLES-McLUHAN

In a novel setting in the Glad Tidings Tabernacle, Saturday evening, at 8, Rev. E. W. Robinson united in marriage Margaret Grieve, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McLuhan, 2538 Quadra Street, and Officer's Steward William John Castles Jr., R.C.N., son of Mr. William J. Castles and the late Mrs. Castles of Crystal City, Man.

A large anchor was placed over the platform where the couple stood, entwined with white and blue roses and underneath, in blue, was the inscription "We've Anchored in Jesus." Baskets of pastel spring flowers and cherry blossoms completed the decorations. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a graceful long gown of white sheer with shirring at the shoulders, Peter Pan collar and bishop sleeves. Her mother's veil was held by a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white carnations, pink roses and fern. Her only ornament was a gold pendant of sapphires and pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Doris McLuhan was her sister's maid of honor in a long gown of tea rose net with hand-embroidered matching chapel veil and a bouquet of lilies, carnations, yellow jonquils and forget-me-nots. Their cousins, Miss Marguerite McLuhan, in a long jacket-frock of pink lace and a cap of pink velvet trimmed in front with blue flowers, and Miss Ruby Jean McLuhan, in blue lace with a blue cap trimmed with pink flowers, were bridesmaids, and carried bouquets of pink snapdragons and carnations. Little Beulah Bell was flower-girl in a pink frilled frock with blue ribbon bows and wore a shirred bandeau of blue net trimmed with roses and tied with pink ribbon and carried a basket of snapdragons, forget-me-nots and white flowers.

Mr. Herbert P. Woods, R.C.A., was best man, and Messrs. Harold Beirnes and Leonard Mall were ushers. After the ceremony a duet, "The Lord Bless and Keep Thee," was sung by Misses Ella White of Port Alberni and Phyllis Brand of Winnipeg, accompanied by Miss N. Wheeler, who also played the wedding marches.

After the ceremony Mrs. Castles received about 60 guests at her home, wearing a wine redingote costume with black feather-trimmed hat and corsage of tea roses and fern. A program of gospel music was contributed by Misses Ella White and Phyllis Brand, Mr. Dick Goodwyn, Mrs. A. Bell, Miss M. Cox and Mrs. R. Bowering. Mr. E. R. Hall, B.Sc., Saanichton, was master of ceremonies. At supper, grace was said by Rev. L. Blackmore, and after the toasts to the bride and groom had been proposed by Mr. T. S. Bowett, chaplain of Rest Haven Sanitarium, and Rev. E. W. Robinson, the bride cut the cake.

For her honeymoon to the mainland the bride changed to a velvet suit in fuchsia shade with touches of ecru lace and air force blue topcoat and accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Castles will live in Saanich.

Mrs. W. White of Alberni was a guest at the wedding. Among the gifts received was a casserole from the bride's associates in the St. John Ambulance Nursing Division and a Kenwood blanket from her friends of the Glad Tidings Tabernacle.

CONNORS-DOBIE

Apple blossom, japonica and daffodils formed the background at the home of the bride's parents for the wedding at 8.30 Monday evening of Lillian Louise, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dobie, 1557 Oak Bay Avenue, and Mr. George Connors, R.C.N. V.R., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Connors, Verdun, Quebec, Rev. James Hood officiating. Miss Delver Dobie played the wedding marches and accompanied Mrs. J. McCall, who sang "Because" while the register was being signed.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a two-piece afternoon frock of sky blue silk crepe with navy blue accessories and a corsage bouquet of gardenias and lily of the valley. Mrs. Frances Miller, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor in a smart navy blue jacket dress appliqued in white, with navy accessories and a corsage bouquet of Talisman roses and white sweet peas. Mr. Jack Wilson, R.C.N.V.R., was best man.

Mrs. Dobie, who wore a dove grey suit and hat with a rose blouse and a corsage bouquet of Talisman roses and pink sweet peas, welcomed the guests, assisted by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. W. Hodgson, in a navy blue redingote ensemble and hat, wearing a shoulder spray of Talisman roses and violets. The three-tiered wedding cake flanked by silver vases of pink carnations and lighted pink tapers, centred the supper table which was covered by a cutwork cloth. The bride donned a navy blue fitted coat over her wedding outfit, before leaving for the honeymoon in Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. Connors will make their home in Victoria. Mrs. LeRoy MacDonald, an aunt of the bride, from Seattle, was a guest at the wedding.

DALTON-WAKELIN

Beautifully decorated for Easter, St. Barnabas Church formed a lovely setting for the marriage of Miss Una Enid Wakelin, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Wakelin, 1022 Southgate Street, and Mr. Frank Dalton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Dalton of 1519 Post Avenue, Torrance, Calif., which took place Monday evening with Rev. Father N. E. Smith officiating.

The choir was in attendance and led the singing of the hymn, "O Perfect Love," with Mrs. R. E. Yerbrough at the organ. During the signing of the register Miss Elaine Basanta sang the solo, "Ave Maria" (Gounod). The pretty bride wore a gown of white lace-web chiffon, with a long train, the bodice made with a V-neckline and tight sleeves with shirred puffs at the top. The filmy net veil was attached to her head with a Mary Queen of Scots headdress and fell over her shoulders in graceful folds to the end of the train. In keeping with her bridal attire was the sheaf of Calla lilies carried by the bride.

There were two attendants for the bride, the Misses Alphonsine Boelet and Lorraine Wakelin, cousin of the bride, both dressed alike in frocks of "heavenly" blue chiffon, and on their heads, veils in the same shade as their frock extending to the hip line. Their bouquets were of pink carnations.

The best man was Mr. William Hanna of Nanaimo, and the ushers were the bride's brothers, Messrs. Howard and Gerald Wakelin.

Following the service, a reception was held in the Duke of Kent dining-room at the Empress Hotel where Mrs. Wakelin welcomed the guests in a dinner gown of dusty rose crepe, with sequin-trimmed jacket and a corsage bouquet of roses, and her hat was a wide-brimmed greenery-banked fireplace black model. Spring flowers and greenery were arranged about the room. A five-tier cake surmounted by a vase of lily of the valley and with flowers wreathed about the base, centred the supper table, which was covered with a pastel-green damask cloth. Flowers and tall green tapers added to the charming table appointments.

For a motoring trip en route to Torrance, Calif., where they will make their home, the bride left in a powder blue dress and hat worn with a beige coat with a lynx collar, brown alligator accessories and a corsage bouquet of orchids.

CAMPBELL-WELCHMAN

Seasonal blooms were arranged in St. Luke's Church, Cedar Hill, for the wedding, Saturday evening, at 8, of Cicely Muriel, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Welchman, Gordon Head Road, and Gordon H. Campbell of Kamloops, B.C., youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Campbell, Royal Oak. Rev. F. Pike officiated at the ceremony, which was fully choral, with two hymns, "O Perfect Love" and "Love Divine," and a solo by Miss Amy Walton, "All Joy Be Thine."

The bride was given away by her father and wore a heavy white crepe gown with finger-tip veil caught to a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and pink carnations. Miss Rene Welchman attended her sister in a turquoise blue frock with matching, veiled hat and a bouquet of pink roses. Mr. William Campbell supported his brother and the ushers were Mr. Archie Campbell and Mr. Ted Anderson.

About 100 guests were received in St. Luke's Parish Hall after the ceremony. Mrs. Welchman welcomed them in a powder blue dress with black hat and fox fur, assisted by Mrs. Campbell in air force blue, both having corsages of pink carnations. Yellow flowers were predominant in the hall decorations, the bride's table being arranged with a silver bowl of blue hyacinths and lighted yellow tapers.

Later the couple left for the mainland en route to Kamloops, where they will reside, the bride donning a tailored blue suit with beige hat and matching accessories.

MILBORNE-MANNIX

The wedding took place Monday evening at 8, in St. Columba Church, of Madeline-Blanche, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Mannix, Jasmine Avenue, to Frederick William, elder son of Mr. W. H. Milborne and the late Mrs. Milborne, Snowdrop Avenue. Rev. Canon H. V. Hitchcock officiated, the church being decorated with daffodils and plum blossom, while the guest pews were marked with posies of violets and ribbons. The wedding music was played by Miss Elsie Fryatt, and the solo, "O Perfect Love," was rendered by Mrs. T. Floyd, accompanied by Miss Fryatt.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a white taffeta gown fashioned on princess lines with a short train, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves and finger-length veil of white illusion net with a coronet of orange blossom. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, Talisman roses and lilies of the valley.

Attending her were the Misses Lenora Mannix, sister of the bride, and Maureen Bayley, both in dresses of turquoise blue sheer over taffeta, designed with full skirts and long sleeves, wearing picture-hats matching their dresses, and carried bouquets of Maytime carnations, snapdragon and lilies of the valley. Mr. Eric Bayley was groomsmen, and Messrs. Stanley Britt and Bernard O'Connor ushers.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. W. A. Mannix, Orilla Street. The guests were received by the bride's mother, attired in a grey and mauve ensemble, and wearing a corsage of violets. She was assisted by Mrs. F. Bayley, aunt of the groom, wearing navy blue with white trimmings, and a corsage of pink carnations. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth, the wedding cake being flanked with tall white tapers in silver sconces, interspersed with vases of sweet peas.

The honeymoon will be spent up-island, the bride travelling in a brown tailored suit with beige accessories. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Toms and Miss K. McEwen of Port Alberni. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Milborne will take up residence on Jasmine Avenue.

TWISS-MAYNARD

At Christ Church Cathedral Monday evening at 8, Jean Adele, youngest daughter of the late Mr. E. G. Maynard and Mrs. Maynard, Fort Street, and Roger Quintin Twiss, A.B., R.C.N., youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Crawford O. Twiss, Galliano Island, were united in marriage by Rev. J. Fife. Mr. Stanley Bulley played the wedding march and incidental music. The Easter decorations made a lovely setting for the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Basil Fedun, wore a beige and cinnamon brown jacket ensemble of silk crepe, with a matching straw sailor hat and short veil. An orchid was pinned to her lapel and she carried a small Colonial posy of mixed flowers. Mrs. Henry Matte attended her sister in a navy and white dress and hat, with a corsage bouquet of rose and white carnations and hyacinths, together with the bridegroom's sister, Miss Barbara Twiss, in hyacinth blue with pink accessories and a corsage posy of pink and blue hyacinths. Gerald Phenix, A.B., R.C.N., supported the bridegroom.

At a small reception, held in the rooms of the Business and Professional Women's Club, Mrs. Maynard welcomed the guests in a rose ensemble with navy blue accessories, assisted by Mrs. Twiss, in grey and rose, and both wore corsage bouquets of roses. Apple blossom and daffodils in beautiful Oriental jars decorated the rooms. The supper table was covered with a gold-brocade cloth, and centred by the wedding cake, surrounded by amber glass bowls of daffodils and lighted white tapers in amber holders.

Before leaving for a honeymoon in Vancouver, the bride donned a hunter's green British tweed coat with a red fox collar over her wedding frock. Mr. and Mrs. Twiss will make their home in Victoria.

Canadian Nurse Had Harrowing Trip From Far East

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP).—Mrs. Ruth Peake, Canadian nurse who ran the gauntlet of Japanese machine guns with her two small children to escape from Malacca to Singapore at the start of the Far Eastern war, today was separated by passport regulations and a few miles from a reunion with her mother and sister here.

Mrs. Peake arrived yesterday at Niagara Falls, New York, with her children, Christopher, 5, and Judith, 2, after her long journey home via Australia. Weary from her trip, Mrs. Peake declined interviews while resting there at the home of her sister, Mrs. Harry Lyle.

Describing her sister's flight to safety, Mrs. Lyle said: "She drove her own car, accompanied by her two children all the way from Malacca to Singapore... 85 or 90 miles. The car was machine-gunned from the air continuously, and often it was necessary to stop the vehicle and crawl into the ditch along the side of the road. But she made the trip without injury."

Mrs. Peake decided not to cross into Canada until the validity of her passport is established for herself and the children, who were born in the Orient. Her mother, here, Mrs. VanAlstyne, lacks the necessary passport and visa to cross to the United States, delaying the reunion.

Fewer Laborers For Prairie Farms

WINNIPEG (CP).—Prairie farmers are offering higher wages this year for experienced farm help, but there are fewer men applying for the jobs, say employment office managers in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba after a survey in large farming districts.

An official of the Winnipeg employment office said the average wage offered for experienced men this year for farm work is $40, compared with $25 and $30 monthly last year and "it is extremely difficult to get experienced men."

"In other years we have always had large groups of men returning from bush work who would go to the farms in the summer; but this year there are indications many of the pulp companies employing the men in the bush will operate all summer and this curbs the supply of workers for the farms. There is no acute shortage yet, but we always have more requests for men than we can fill," he said.

"Many men prefer bush work for the large companies because the pay is higher and they work only eight hours a day. Transportation is also supplied both ways if a man stays on the job for four months. This has caused many men usually employed on farms to go over to bush work."

Victoria Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Forestry Corps Overseas will meet Friday at 2.30 in the Y.W.C.A. Private Stan Levy, recently returned from overseas, will give a talk on his experiences and association with the men of the Forestry Corps.

W.A. to the R.C.E. will meet Wednesday at 2.30 at the home of Mrs. BeBessonne, 649 Admirals Road.

Food Dollar Goes Farther In 1942 Than 1918

Take it from Byrne Hope Sanders, director of consumer representation for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board: the Canadian dollar stretches a lot farther nowadays for the Canadian housewife than it did in the first Great War.

To prove her point Miss Sanders—"Mrs. Consumer" to thousands of Canadian women—has worked out a chart of comparative prices for commodities during 1918, 1939, the basic period Sept. 15 to October 11, 1941, which is the foundation for Canada's general price ceiling, and the present.

Taking 11 staples which cost $3 in 1918 and carrying them through the four periods, the chart shows that the same amount of ordinary household goods—butter, lard, sugar, eggs, milk, bread, meat and so on—cost $1.88 in 1939, $2.27 during the basic period and $2.26 now.

Three differences between present prices and the basic period are noted in the list. Lard, which sold at 37 cents a pound during 1918 and 14 cents in 1939, now sells at 17 cents—one cent less than during the basic period.

Grade A eggs, which sold at 34 cents a half-dozen in 1918 and 21 cents during 1939, now sell at two cents less than the basic period price of 22 cents.

Black tea, which sold at 31 cents a half-pound during the last war and at the same price in 1939, now is two cents more a half-pound package than the basic period price of 40 cents.

BUTTER CHEAPER

Butter which sells at 39 cents is 18 cents a pound cheaper than in 1918. Milk, selling at 13 cents a quart, is one cent cheaper than in 1918, and round steak, listed at 34 cents a pound during the last year of the last war, now sells at 30 cents.

Potatoes which sold at 7 cents for three pounds during 1918 have remained at 6 cents for the same quantity over the three other periods. Canned tomatoes, which at present sell at 14 cents, sold at 21 cents for the same quantity in 1918.

Rolls of oats sold at 8 cents a pound during 1918 and is listed at 6 cents a pound now; white flour which now sells at 12 cents for three pounds sold at 21 cents for the same quantity during 1918; and sugar during the same period sold at 36 cents for three pounds—9 cents more than the present price.

Mennonites Study Silk Industry

Mennonite families in the Fraser Valley are becoming interested in production of silk, according to word received here by Cecil French, originator of the scheme to start a silk industry on Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

Mennonites in the Fraser Valley have large farms and in recent months have been growing mulberry trees and importing eggs which will feed on the leaves in June, prior to spinning.

Victoria nurseries also are putting in stocks of mulberry trees as interest in silk production grows. Many greater Victoria farmers plan to grow mulberry trees as a sideline.

INSTRUCTIONS

Schoolchildren of Greater Victoria will collect mulberry leaves on which the worms will feed before spinning their silk.

Mr. French now has silkworms eggs in cold storage. When the children have enough leaves he will issue eggs to each interested child. He has prepared a list of all mulberry trees in the Greater Victoria area.

Uplift in Thought Theme of Lecture

That the period of time through which we are passing is the darkest hour before the dawn of a new era was the central thought in an inspirational lecture given by Mrs. Wilfrid Ord to a capacity audience at her studio.

Quoting liberally from articles published in leading newspapers and magazines of some years ago and of today, Mrs. Ord graphically illustrated the uplift taking place in the thought of many people today.

The lecture was followed by a recital by Mrs. Ord of some of the finest prose and poetry of British and American literature.

Pro Patria W.A. will meet in the V.W.L. rooms, 635 Fort Street, tonight at 8. A Viny tea will be held in the rooms Thursday at 2.30; home cooking stall, bings and musical program.

The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation was established in 1925 by the late United States Senator Simon Guggenheim and by Mrs. Guggenheim as a memorial to a son. The purpose of the foundation is to give opportunities to men and women of the highest abilities to further their work in scholarship and in the arts. The stipends granted to Fellows are usually $2,500 for a year. The fellowships are open without distinction on account of race, color or creed to men and women, married or unmarried. Normally the Fellows are between 25 and 40 years of age.

In making appointments to fellowships this year the trustees of the foundation adopted a resolution that the use of all fellowships awarded to citizens of the United States as well as to Canadians should be subject to the requirements of any national service for which Fellows may be required.

The trustees of the foundation, in addition to Mrs. Guggenheim, are Francis H. Brownell, Carroll A. Wilson, Charles D. Hilles, Roger W. Straus, Charles Earl, John C. Emison and Medley G. B. Whelpley.

The committee of selection consisted of Dr. Frank Aydelotte, director of the institute for advanced study, Princeton, New Jersey, chairman; Dr. Florence R. Sabin of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research; Professor Edwin Bidwell Wilson of the Harvard University School of Public Health, Professor Linus Pauling of the California Institute of Technology, and Professor Wallace Nettesheim of Yale University. In making their decisions, the committee of selection were advised by Canadian authorities in the fields of the applicants' work. Applications for the fellowships

NEW SUIT SALES BRING CHECK-UP

Victoria clothing dealers have been asked to forward to the federal government the names, if any, of men who have purchased since Feb. 1, three or more suits.

No reason was given for requesting the names, but it is understood similar action is being taken in the rest of the Dominion. It was presumed the government was checking up on any men who might have hoarded suits because of the new wartime clothing restrictions.

LYNN PATRICK closes out the current hockey campaign in a blaze of glory with the announcement of his selection on the annual Canadian Press All-Star team. The Victoria home-brew taker over the left wing position awarded last season to Sweeney Schriner of the Toronto Leafs, and in the 1939-40 season to Hector (Toe) Blake of the Montreal Canadiens. Quite an honor for a chap who joined his dad's New York Rangers in the 1934-35 season straight from the amateur ranks.

Patrick's selection for the left wing position was unanimous. His feat of leading the league in goals scored practically made him a cinch to catch the position. Two other Rangers grabbed off places on the number one outfit. Bryan Hextall, taking the right wing berth and Frankie Boucher being named as the team coach. Another Ranger, Phil Watson, was named as centre on the second team.

Kimberley Dynamiters, who paid Victoria a flying visit a few weeks ago, to knock off the Navy club in a B.C. championship hockey series, certainly took advantage of their so-called second chance in the Allan Cup play-downs. Dynamiters have reached the western Canada final against Port Arthur Bearcats. It seems rather odd that Calgary Stampede and Lethbridge Maple Leafs, who both finished higher than Kimberley in the regular A.B.C. League schedule, have both been knocked out of further competition. Number of local followers who would like to be recognized as "experts" gave Kimberley little chance against Saskatoon Quakers in the western Canada semifinals. Now they will have to eat their own predictions.

Despite a long layoff Edmonton's famous Grads, strengthened by the addition of several younger players, upheld their brilliant record in international

'Y' Swimmers Travel

Seek P.N.W. Titles

Top-ranking swim stars of Pacific Northwest Y.M.C.A.'s will journey to Vancouver next week-end to compete for honors at the annual P.N.W. Y.M.C.A. aquatic championships Saturday.

"Y's" from British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, and Idaho will be represented in the battle for swim titles with more than 100 athletes expected to participate. The Victoria, New Westminster and Vancouver clubs will uphold the colors of B.C. with Seattle, Tacoma, Olympia and other centres representing Washington.

STRONG TEAM

The cream of the local "Y" squad will be in the terminal city. Archie McKimmon, coach said today. His 10-man team of outstanding water-splashers will include Hugh Roston, captain of the team, holder of a handful of championships; Jack Todd, Victoria's ace breast-stroke artist; Teddy Rau, B.C. diving title-holder, and Len Coverdale, local freestyle flash who is rapidly gaining a name for himself in swim circles of this city.

Others taking the trip will include Bob Johnstone, Bob Montgomery, Hugh McGregor, Ron Neilson, Terry McCauley, and Don Deans.

In previous years it has been Seattle and Portland who have had the strongest teams in the affair, and it is likely that this year again they will take top honors. Seattleites in the meet will include Gordon Sherwood and Bud Hill, both Northwest champs and stars in their strokes.

It will be the first time in two years that the local "Y" has competed in the annual event.

Portage-Oshawa Hockey Victors

WINNIPEG (CP)—Portage La Prairie Terriers, Manitoba contenders in the Memorial Cup playdowns, unleashed a flashy offensive Monday night to defeat Edmonton Maple Leafs, Alberta champions 13 to 3 in the first game of the best-of-five western Canada junior final.

Playing before a capacity crowd of 5,000 fans, the score at the end of the first period was 2 to 1 in favor of Edmonton. Portage made it 5 to 2 at the end of the second and skated off with their 13 to 3 victory. All games in the series will be played in Winnipeg. The teams meet again Wednesday night.

Jack McDonald, husky winger for Terriers, was high scorer in the goal-packed victory with four counters.

EASTERN PLAY

Oshawa had a stranglehold on the eastern Canada junior hockey title today, with three victories against no defeats in the best-of-seven Memorial Cup series against Montreal Royals, but in the best-of-five Allan Cup senior struggle, it looked much closer.

Oshawa gained their latest triumph 7 to 2 over Royals at Montreal Monday night after winning the first two contests 3 to 2 and 4 to 3, and it appeared quite probable they would end the series in the fourth game in Toronto Wednesday night.

In the Allan Cup eastern final, Ottawa's Royal Canadian Air Force Flyers have the edge, having won the first game 3 to 2 in Montreal Saturday, but the series, which resumes in Ottawa tonight, will be decided strictly on its merits.

Toronto Leafs On Spot

Need Win Tonight

TORONTO (CP)—The Stanley Cup hockey game tonight between Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs may well be the last to be played here this season.

Red Wings won the first game 3 to 2 and a repeat victory will put them in an ideal spot to close out the best-of-seven series for the historic trophy in four straight games.

After tonight's contest the teams go to Detroit and on the record the Leafs have hardly a chance for the Red Wings have won 12 successive games on home ice. In fact, they've lost only three games in the last 17. The Detroit games are Thursday and Sunday.

To add to the Leafs' woes there is just a possibility they may be without their coach, Clarence (Hap) Day. Fighting the flu for the past week, Day yielded to his doctor's order and went to bed Sunday.

The Leafs are expected to adopt slightly different tactics from those used Saturday when they attempted to outrough the rambunctious Red Wings and went down from sheer exhaustion.

Eddie Powers who, with Major Conn Smythe, supervised the Toronto workout yesterday, said: "We'll have to get to the puck first and try and evade the rough stuff."

Bingo Kampman was the only Leaf on the limp. The defence kysky has been bothered with a knee injury for some time. However, he is expected to do his usual chore in the second game.

The Red Wings skipped through a 40-minute workout Monday with the carefree manner of a bunch of kids playing shinny.

Various Grains Go Into Making Of Bread Flour

During a visit in Pompeii I saw a large brick oven which had been used when the city was covered with ashes 1,863 years ago. When this oven, and others like it, were dug up, proofs were found that some persons in Pompeii were baking bread when the volcano, Vesuvius, broke loose.

The Romans ground grain and made flour. They used yeast to make the dough rise when it was baked. The loaves of bread were often of rounded shape, rather flat on top and bottom.

CAKES BY THE THOUSANDS EMERGE FROM THE HUGE OVENS OF MODERN BAKERIES

Many kinds of grain have been used for the making of bread. Wheat and rye are most popular, but various other kinds are used. Rice can be turned into flour, and there is even such a thing as "potato flour."

The Indians of this continent made bread from corn long before the whites arrived. They ground the corn into meal and mixed the meal with water. Then they heated the dough and made the bread known as "corn pone."

Indian corn, or "maize," was not known in Europe until after the time of Columbus. Since then it has been planted in almost every country where it will grow well. Each year the world produces enough corn to supply two bushels to every man, woman and child.

In Scotland the people make wide use of oats to bake "oat cakes." They also like a flat bread made from barley meal.

There is a story of a French queen who was told that her people were starving because they had no bread. "If they don't have bread," she asked, "why don't they eat cakes?"

Poor Queen Marie Antoinette did not know much about the needs of the common people. She failed to realize that if they could not afford bread they surely could not afford the more expensive cake.

Cake is, to a certain extent, "sweet bread." There are certain kinds of cake which are not sweet, but if you ask for a cake at a bakery, you may expect one which is sweet, perhaps with a thick layer of "icing."

Through the centuries cakes have cost more than bread. This has been due largely to the expense of the sweetening and other things added to the dough. Eggs and butter are used in making many cakes.

With the low cost of sugar in modern times, the price of cakes has come down. Little cakes called "cookies" have won widespread favor.

In many cities and towns of England it is possible to buy buns of a special kind on Good Friday. Each one is marked with a cross, and they are known as "hot cross buns."

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

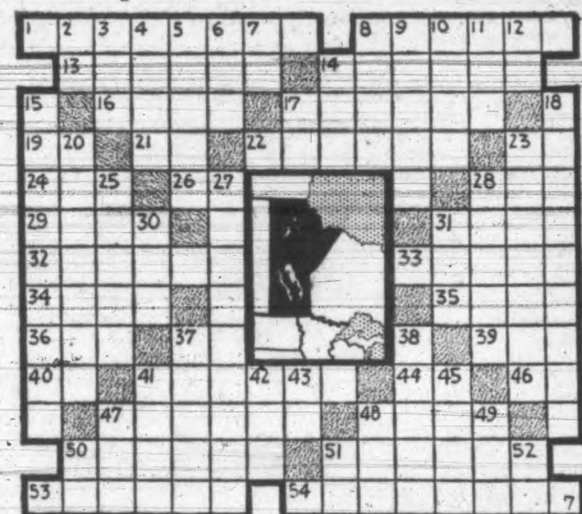

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a girl of 18 going with a boy of 23. I have promised that I would marry him, but I find that I cannot do it because there is another boy whom I love with all my heart. I have loved him ever since we were children and went to school together. But this second boy has no money, while the other boy has, and my mother insists that I marry the boy with the money. The boy I love has a job, but it does not pay enough for us to marry. What shall I do?

BROKEN-HEARTED GIRL

Answer: Don't let your mother force or persuade you into marrying a boy you don't love. It takes a lot of love to make any woman endure all the hardships she has to undergo in marriage, and be happy and glad she did it. Without love she is always unhappy and dissatisfied and finds marriage a purgatory, instead of the Heaven on earth it should be.

Urwin-Mann, Victoria Born, Receives Award for Bravery

LONDON (CP)—Three Canadians whose gallantry won recognition in the desert air war of the Middle East are listed in the Air Ministry's latest announcement of awards.

Acting Flight-Lieut. John Ronald Urwin-Mann, born in Victoria, B.C., receives a bar to his Distinguished Flying Cross; Acting Flight-Lieut. Robert Wilfred Alexander of Norwich, Ont., and Acting Flight-Lieut. Clifton Watt Harper of Brighton, Ont., received the D.F.C.

Urwin-Mann was one of the R.A.F.'s top pilots in the spectacular battles over Britain in the fall of 1940 when the German air force tried unsuccessfully to defeat British air power. He was awarded the D.F.C. on Nov. 19, 1940, after his record showed he had shot down eight enemy planes.

CITATION

A member of squadron 238, Urwin-Mann's second citation for a decoration does not establish whether he won it in raids on the continent or over territory in the Middle East. The citation says: "This officer led a formation of four aircraft in combat against a superior force of Messerschmitt 109's. Although he was wounded in the back, and later his aircraft was badly damaged, he flew it safely back to the base some 60 miles away. The next day, this officer was again leading his flight."

"He has been engaged in operational flying both in England and the Middle East and has led his flight squadron on wing on some 40 sorties, often in adverse weather conditions."

Alexander, 22-year-old member of the R.C.A.F., carried out at least 51 sorties as an observer against objectives in Libya, Syria, Greece and other Mediterranean areas.

"Over a long period he has been carrying out the duties of squadron navigation officer with great success and his experience as observer, combined with his ability as an instructor, have enabled him to attain a very high degree of navigation-in-squadron. He has displayed consistent keenness, coolness and determination and has set a fine example to all."

Harper, 27, won this citation: "He has carried out several long and dangerous low-level bombing and machine gun attacks, some of them at night. On one occasion, despite intense anti-aircraft fire and searchlight activity, he made four runs over Bengasi Harbor at a height of 20 feet in a determined attempt to bomb an enemy ship. His keenness and courage have proved a source of inspiration."

TO FREE ITALIANS IN EAST AFRICA

LONDON (CP)—Diplomatic sources said today 11,000 Italian civilians would be repatriated from camps on the east African coast in a long operation around the Cape of Good Hope to be led by the Italian liners Saturnia and Vulcania.

The Saturnia and Vulcania now are at Gibraltar on their way to a withdrawal port on the Red Sea. The German Navy presumably has been notified of their passage to free them from U-boat attack in the Atlantic.

Many more ships will follow these two, it was said. The civilians to be withdrawn are men unfit for military service, women and children. They were placed in coastal camps after defeat of the Italian armies in East Africa.

(This repatriation of civilians followed announcement last Saturday that Britain and Italy have started to exchange their sick and wounded prisoners of war. Ships carrying the war prisoners met at the western Turkish port of Smyrna for the exchange.)

Unions Submit Alternative Plan

A WEST COAST CANADIAN PORT (CP)—A plan for institution of a six-day week in British Columbia shipyards under which shipyard employees would work five days and lay off on the sixth, has been submitted to the federal Department of Labor by union officials.

The scheme would replace the 24-hour day, seven-day work week, which had been scheduled to go into effect in British Columbia shipyards on or before April 1. It was agreed by shipyard operators and union officials following a visit to the Pacific coast recently by Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell.

Shipyard operators and union officials have been meeting continuously in an effort to get the seven-day plan in operation. To date they have been unsuccessful.

Harold Winch, leader of the C.C.F. opposition in the B.C. Legislature, said in a statement union agreements entitled shipyard workers to double pay Good Friday. He said the employers wanted them to work for straight time.

The statement said in part: "The shutdowns should show the government and the public the need for immediate clarification of labor policies to recognize that the only method of obtaining an all-out war effort is for representatives of workers to function on all policy and administration boards connected with the war."

Fourteen of the cars bore California licenses, 20 Oregon, 78 Washington. Cars from Washington, D.C.; Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, Ohio, Texas, Utah, Wyoming, also visited Victoria during the month.

Admiral Fiske Dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Rear Admiral Bradley Allen Fiske, 87, U.S.N. retired, former commander of the first, third and fifth divisions of the Atlantic Fleet, and famed as a naval inventor, died last night in his suite at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Fiske had been in failing health and confined to his suite for the last two months with a nurse in constant attendance.

He is survived by a daughter, Miss Caroline Harper Fiske. Among his many inventions adopted by the navy were the naval telescope sight, the torpedo pike, an electric range-finder, electric ammunition hoist and a system of turning battle-ship turrets by electricity.

He was navigator of the Petrol at the battle of Manila and was cited by Admiral Dewey for "heroic conduct."

Geodetic Survey Captain Wins Geophysics Medal

WASHINGTON—The Bowie Medal, highest honor in the special field of geophysics, was presented to Capt. N. H. Heck of the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey at the meeting here of the American Geophysical Union. Until recently, Capt. Heck was chief of the Division of Geomagnetism and Seismology in the Survey; now he is assistant to the director of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, for technical matters.

This is the fourth award of the Bowie Medal, which was founded as a memorial to the late Dr. William Bowie of the Survey, famous for his researches on gravitational variations in and below the crust of the earth.

Dies at Nelson

NELSON (CP)—Mrs. Mary Holoboff, 108-year-old Doukhobor resident of nearby Shoresacres and one of the first of her sect to leave Russia for Canada because of religious persecution near the turn of the century, is dead. She leaves 103 descendants.

Born in 1834 at Milky Waters, Russia, she was exiled when eight years old along with other Doukhobors to the Caucasus Mountains.

At 18 she was married to Holoboff, who died before she left Russia in 1886. Coming to Canada, she lived in Buchanan, Sask., until 1914, when she moved to British Columbia.

NAVAL OFFICER HOME ON LEAVE

SUB-LIEUT. IAN HARVARD WILLIAMS, R.C.N.V.R.

His 24th birthday in March, 1941, was not only an anniversary for Sub-Lieut. Ian Williams of 334 Michigan Street, it was the turning point in the lives of more than a score of shipwrecked seamen adrift three days in an open boat in the Atlantic.

The young officer who is now home on leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvard Williams, was on duty off the east coast last year and it was on his 25th birthday that his ship came across two lifeboats from a torpedoed freighter. They had been three days adrift and were giving up hope when the city man's ship went to their rescue.

His homecoming was another big event. Mr. Williams Sr. had been confined to his bed for several months when word came that his son was coming home on leave. Mr. Williams' recovery began and he got up for the first time since being taken ill on the day his son arrived.

Born in Victoria, Sub-Lieut. Williams was educated in New Zealand, where his parents went to live, and on returning to Canada at Victoria High School.

He leaves shortly to resume his duties on the east coast.

Why Drill Retained

Training Plans Of Reserve Army

Officers of the Reserve Army are generally in agreement with the new syllabus of training which went into effect April 1. Clause in the new manual providing for the retention of drill as part of the reserves' basic training, although occasioning surprise in civilian quarters, was expected by the military.

The new syllabus explains that "drill is the foundation of discipline and esprit de corps." Reasons for retaining it are cited as follows:

"To compel the habit of obedience."

"To stimulate, by combined and orderly movement, the man's pride in himself and his unit."

"To enable bodies of troops to be formed up and moved rapidly and without confusion."

MODERATION URGED

A rider on drill is carried to the effect that officers and N.C.O.'s must teach troops essential movements only, and that "boredom and fatigue" must be avoided.

In a general preamble the syllabus under the title of "Policy of Training, Reserve Army," says:

"The primary task of the Reserve Army units in M.D. 11 will be to be ready if the need arises to take part in active operations against the enemy for the defence of the Pacific coast of Canada."

Instructions are given to ensure that all units are given training that will enable them to operate as independent bodies, a provision that widens the scope of individual training, and will make it a necessity to train all troops, specialists or otherwise, as riflemen, able to defend themselves or attack the enemy independent of other branches of the services.

LESSONS OF CRETE

The lessons of various battles in the present war are learned and cited, the syllabus stating: "From experience in Crete and Greece it has been found that the Germans are easily persuaded to capitulate in front of a 'well-trained' bayonet."

Bayonet practice, therefore, will be continued and emphasized. Another point in favor of the bayonet is that practice in its use constitutes splendid physical training, and it is observed that successes of the British in Libya were due largely to the superior physical condition of the British.

The monthly meeting of the Luxton and Happy Valley Women's Institute will be held this evening at 8 at the home of Mrs. Hobbs.

Aussies Murdered New Guinea Japs Killed Captives In Cold Blood

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Charges the Japanese killed their captives in cold blood on the islands of New Guinea and New Britain were made today in a statement issued officially at Port Moresby.

Army Minister Francis Forde said he had asked that the report be forwarded to him by senior Australian officers. The statement told the story of three Australian servicemen who said they were the only survivors of one group of 10 officers and men trapped on New Britain after the fall of Rabaul.

The others, with their hands tied behind their backs, were shot or bayoneted to death after they were captured by a landing party from a Japanese destroyer, it stated.

Leaflets scattered from Japanese planes had warned that any who did not surrender would be killed.

SUICIDE ORDERED

Each captured Australian officer was handed a revolver and one bullet and was ordered to commit suicide, the statement said.

One of the men who escaped shamed death when a Japanese officer went among the fallen bodies to finish off the wounded.

The three survivors said they wandered, bleeding from their wounds and numb from the horrors they had seen, for several days with their hands bound behind them before they were rescued. (How they escaped was not explained.)

"Our hands were fastened and we were made up into parties of 10," said one of them. "Each party was taken into the jungle. My party was stopped after going short distance."

"A Japanese officer drew his sword and ordered his men to fix bayonets. One Australian after another was detached from the party and sent into the bush with a Japanese soldier armed with a bayonet."

"Soon after, we heard screams and wondered what was happening. 'One of our men asked to be shot and this was done by the officer himself.'

"Another of our fellows got loose and dashed into the bush, but the officer caught up with him and ran his sword through his back, then shot him."

"After that several men were bayoneted only a few yards from me without being taken into the underground."

"Most of the Australians cursed the Japs and said, 'You'll pay for this when our snaps catch you.'"

A 20-year-old Aussie corporal, who said he escaped from Rabaul and lived in the New Britain jungle for two months before reaching Australia, declared there still are many Australians living primitively among the island's natives while awaiting a chance to escape.

Japanese Claim All Sumatra Occupied

TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcasts, AP)—Imperial headquarters claimed today the whole of the Netherlands East Indies Island of Sumatra came under Japanese control March 27 when the commander of the Netherlands forces on the island surrendered at Kutardja, a strategic port in northern Sumatra.

The report said that in military operations in northern and central sectors of Sumatra, Japanese troops captured 3,100 Allied soldiers, including 1,900 Netherlands troops and 900 British.

It said the British forces were those who landed in Sumatra when ships carrying them from Singapore were sunk by Japanese naval units. The British included 30 members of the R.A.F., the Japanese added.

'Crusade for Living'

WITH THE U.S. ARMY IN NORTHERN IRELAND (CP)—Maj.-Gen. Russel P. Hartle, field commander of the U.S. forces in Britain, suggested Monday night in an order of the day commemorating the U.S. entry into the First Great War 25 years ago that the present conflict be called a "crusade for living."

Broadcasting to his troops, some veterans of the last war and others the sons of veterans, Gen. Hartle said:

"If in the future this war is known by some other designation than World War II, it should be named in terms that express this will to fight for truth, international character and freedom."

In other words, a "Crusade for Living."
